Teasdale says PSC members will stay

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale, who rode an anti+Public Service Commission campaign to victory in November, says he is abandoning his efforts to replace four of the five commission members.

"All the commissioners said they would elect to remain on the commission," Teasdale told newsmen on Wednesday after concluding half-hour meetings behind closed doors with each of the PSC members during which he asked for the voluntary resignations.

It was the first meeting between Teasdale and the commissioners since he began severely criticizing them for possible negligence in office early last year, and the governor's comments confirmed statements made by the commissioners as they left the meetings.

During those sessions, the commission members said Teasdale raised the question of whether he could legally remove them involuntarily, a proposal he initially made in the campaign. But the governor said later that such a move would probably result in a court fight.

"The truth is I'm making the decision not to take it to court," Teasdale said. "I'm going to avoid taking the time to try to establish negligence and take a more positive approach and this is an executive kind of action to stop the utilities from receiving what I have said repeatedly are unjust increases and we'll just have to wait to see how effective I am."

Teasdale said he felt the four commissioners, excluding James Mulvaney, should have resigned so he could "start with a clean, fresh beginning" in trying to control utility rates, as he has promised to do.

He said he would name Mulvaney, who has a reputation as a consumer advocate to a full six year term this spring.

"I frankly thought I would receive at least two (resignations)," Teasdale said. "I'm suprised they want to stay on."

He said, however, he would act as a watch dog, questioning commission decisions, and attempt to set up a council that will oversee PSC operations, possibly setting operating guidelines for the commission.

The governor said that approach will be coupled with the fact that he will replace Commissioner Charles Fain with a "consumer advocate" when Fain's term expires in May and that he understands one of the other three commissioners will resign within the next year, allowing him another appointment.

The two new appointees plus Mulvaney, he said, would mean that in the next year "we will have three commissioners more inclined to my way of thinking."

Several of the commission members, upon emerging from the meetings, said they were concerned about the statements Teasdale has made which they said have impuned their integrity and wanted the governor to "clear the air" on the matter.

"I don't think any member of the commission is guilty of a failure of integrity," Teasdale said in response. But he said based on the meetings with them:

"I'm convinced that the utility companies have had their way and I'm convinced that because the public has not been represented—the public counsel has not been adequately staffed—I think the commission has ruled consistently in favor

When pressed for specific instances of negligence on the part of the commission, Teasdale cited in general terms the rate increases of the past two years and the $1.8 billion Union Electric Co. nuclear power plant. He said the commission authorized it without adequate study of hazardous waste disposal or safety factors.

Judge favors expanded authority for patrol

Expanded authority of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, increased pay for law enforcement personnel and more penitentiary capacity were three items that U.S. District Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis supported Wednesday night as improvements in Missouri law enforcement.

Meredith, who is chief judge for the Eastern District of Missouri, made his remarks at a meeting of the Southeast Missouri Peace Officers at the Sikeston Country Club.

The judge said crime that used to be donfined to one county or another can easily take on a statewide scope through improvements in transportation and communications, and he believes a state police force is needed to deal with crime on a statewide basis.

Highway patrol duties, in many counties, is limited to traffic control, with sheriff's departments handling a bulk of the criminal investigations, he pointed out.

Meredith also said he thinks the state attorney general should have the authority to institute criminal proceedings in any court in the state.

In commenting on pay for Missouri law enforcement personnel, Meredith said people will vote to provide money for programs for indigents, but hesitate when it comes to making law enforcement salaries attractive enough to enlist qualified people who want to make it a career.

"Law enforcement is essential to this society," Meredith said, indicating that the peace officer is often the only person who stands in the way of social disorder.

Meredith also said he believes there should be more penitentiaries in Missouri and that they should include workhouses, where inmates are required to perform manual labor, instead of lining in a "country club" environment.

Among other suggestions the judge made for improving law enforcement in Missouri were provisions for setting up regions around the state so the resources of the law enforcement agencies within that region could be combined and adequate training — initially and constant retraining — to keep officers abreast of changes in law enforcement techniques and in the law itself.

Meredith told the SeMo officers he could see a trend in U.S. Supreme Court decisions swinging away from Warren Court permissiveness to a more conservative outlook in the court of Chief Justice Warren Burger.

Several cases were cited, showing new interpretations of the Miranda warning decisions, with more evidence and statements by suspects being admissable in court.

When asked his opinion of recent Court of Appeals rulings concerning the use of firearms by police officers to stop fleeing felons, Meredith said he believes the decision was an incorrect one and that the U.S.Supreme Courthas been asked to review the case and render its own decision.

Meredith said a balance must be struck between the Soviet-type of law enforcement, where enforcement of government wishes is absolute, and our own system, where society must be protected while assuring the individual that his rights will also be preserved. The judge said he believes the U.S. law enforcement and judicial systems are approaching that balance.

Interest is high in city election

Interest is high in this spring's municipal election in Sikeston, if the early rate of filing by candidates is any indication.

Two men have filed for seats and one is reportedly planning to file today or Friday. Three seats are expected to be contested.

The election will be conducted April 5, with a primary scheduled March 22 if needed.

The deadline for filing is March 12.

The first candidate to file was Keith Ziegenhorn, owner of an insurance and real estate firm.

Incumbent Councilman John Houchin has filed for re-election, and Mayor Don Fulton said today he would file for re-election today or Friday.

The seats held by Fulton and Houchin are presently the only ones to be contested.

However, Councilman Bill Ryan said earlier this month he plans to resign on April 1. His seat — which has one more year to run — would then be contested in the April election.

The necessity of a primary will depend on how the election to fill Ryan's seat is handled, according to City Clerk Lynn Lancaster.

If the election is held as a special election in conjunction with the regular election, eight people must file for the seats— five for the seats held by Fulton and Houchin and three for Ryan's — before a primary is needed.

If the election is held as part of the regular election, a primary will be needed if seven people file.

Lancaster said he expects City Attorney Manuel Drumm to make a ruling on the matter at the Feb. 7 City Council meeting.

The election to fill Ryan's seat would be to fill the remaining one year ot his term.

Jean Collins confirmed to human rights board

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate Wednesday confirmed the appointments of 10 members to the state Commission on Human Rights.

Former Gov. Christopher S. Bond asked for the resignations of nearly all commission members last summer when a report showed the commission had been lax in its duties because of a backlog of cases.

Nine of the 10 conformed Wednesday are new appointments. Only Larry Carp of Clayton had been a member of the old commission.

"This group has the potential to see to it that what you want will get done," Carp told the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee earlier in the day. The commission is deqsigned to enforce the state's laws prohibiting all forms of discrimination in accomodations and employment.

Those confirmed in addition to Carp were: Harrison C. Cornelius of Gladstone; Father Salvador Polizzi of St. Louis; Donald E. West of St. Louis; Carrie L. Dunson of Warrensburg; Joan M. Krauskopf of Columbia; Melvin Washington of St. Charles; Jean Collins of Sikeston; Basil L. North Jr. of Kansas City, and commission chairman Alvin Brooks, the assistant city manager of Kansas City.

One more person has yet to be confirmed to the 11-member board. He is Harold F. Glass of Springfield who was unable to attend Wednesday's committee session.

CB and $1,000 worth of farm tools taken

NEW MADRID– A citizens band radio and $1,000 worth of farm tools were taken in separate thefts reported Wednesday to the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department, according to Deputy Sam Hinton, who investigated.

A 23-channel CB radio was stolen about 10:10 p.m. Wednesday from a truck belonging to Michael Rennier of Sikeston Route Three, which was parked at Scotty's Truck Plaza, on Highway 80 at the Interstate 55 interchange.

The farm tools were stolen from a shed on the Ellis Jones farm, three and a half miles east of Malden.

Items taken were an electric welder, one water pump, one grease gun and a small assortment of hand tools.

Hinton said a lock had been pried off the shed door.

Tape deck, pistol stolen

CHARLESTON -- A stereo tape deck, two speakers, a .38 - caliber pistol and shells were reported stolen at 9:21 p.m. Wednesday from the Roosevelt Verner home, 109 W. Iron Bank Road.

Police Chief Bob Ritchey said a kitchen window on the south side of the house was broken to enter the home sometime between 7:45 and 9:15 p.m. Wednesday.

The pistol and shells belonged to Willie Roston, who is a fireman, and the other items taken were owned by Verner.

St. Louis agent says

FBI morale good, despite criticism

By TOM BEARDSLEE

While the trend of U.S. Supreme Court is toward helping law enforcement by allowing more types of evidence to be admissable, Congress seems to be moving in the other direction.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has had to cut back work on 78 per cent of its security cases, according to Harlan C. Phillips, special agent in charge of the FBI's St. Louis field office, because of pressure from Congress.

Phillips also said there is a bill pending in Congress that would require the telephone companies to notify subscribers immediately when a request has been made by federal investigators for their records. "One of the few things an investigator has going for him," Phillips said, "Is an element of surprise." This would be eliminated by the pending bill.

Phillips made the statements during an interview before Wednesday night's Southeast Missouri Peace Officers meeting, at the Sikeston Country Club.

When asked if he could see a change in role for the FBI under the Carter Administration, Phillips said there was some talk about the Bureau becoming the agency to handle the illegal drug problem in the U.S. He said the Drug Enforcement Agency has the responsibility now, but some Congressmen are pushing for the FBI to take over, which would be a change form past administrations.

The morale of bureau agents could be affected, Phillips said, if the appointment of a new director of the Bureau were politicized and a person with no experience was put in charge. Morale now is good, Phillips said, in spite of recent criticism from Congress of some bureau tactics. Phillips said he felt the agents had accomplished a lot, were well trained, highly motivated, and were doing a good job.

Buie draws life in rape, assault case

JACKSON -- Donnie Buie, 23, of Dexter was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday in Cape Girardeau County Circuit Court on charges of felonious assault and rape in a change of venue case from Stoddard County.

The jury of eight women and four men deliberated an hour and 35 minutes before returning a verdict and fixing punishment.

Buie was charged with the rape and knife slashing of a young Dexter woman in her home on June 24, 1976.

The victim, who was able to give police officers a good description of the assailant, said he had entered the house through a back window, slashed her several times with a knife and then raped her.

Buie was arrested and charged the day after the attack occurred.

Burglars clean house

DUDLEY -- The James Riggins home on Route One was burglarized in a big way Wednesday.

After kicking open a back door in the house, burglars took a sofa and a matching chair a chord organ, color television set and a portable black and white television.

Apparently more than one person was involved, a spokesman for the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said, since it would be hard for one person to carry a couch by himself.

The crooks may have used a rental truck, the sheriff's department said.

The Riggins family was away from home all day. They discovered the breakin when they returned home Wednesday night.

New problem for trash collectors

The recent cold weather spell is creating an unusual problem for the city's garbage collectors when they pickup trash at homes with woodburning fireplaces, City Manager Charles Church said today.

Homeowners are putting the ashes and partially burned logs in their trash cans before they are completely extinguished. The logs and ashes quickly use up the oxygen in the trash can and they lay dormant until placed in the back of the garbage trucks where they flare up.

A fire caused by fireplace ashes broke out Monday in the hopper of a garbage truck. Although it caused only minor damage before being extinguished, Church said that if the fire had broken out inside the truck bed, the truck could have been destroyed.

Church said the city is asking that residents make sure ashes and partially burned logs are thoroughly extinguished prior to placing them in a trash container for collection.

AVERAGE PROPERTY TAX UP 105 PER CENT IN DECADE

People paid $242 each on average in state and local property taxes in fiscal year 1975, according to Tax Foundation. that's an increase of 105 per cent over the average tax of $118 paid in 1965.

The amount of such taxes, however, varied widely from state to state. The range was from $53 in Alabama to $430 in Massachusetts. The Commonwealth of Massachussets moved up from second place in ten years with an increase in its property tax burden of 147 per cent.

Closer to home, Kansas ranked 18th with an average property tax of $253, while Missouri ranked 32nd with an average property tax of $184.

California dropped from first in 1965 at $197 to third at $373, an increase of 89 per cent. New York remained in fourth place at $369, up 132 per cent.

Alaska had the largest percentage gain with an increase of 298 per cent. The lowest percentage gains were in Idaho where the tax rose 36 per cent and in Utah where it rose 38 per cent.

Among the least burdened besides Alabama were Louisiana at $85, Arkansas at $90, New Mexico and Kentucky at $95, and Mississippi at $97. Increases in those states ranged from 73 to 111 per cent.

FIRE PROTECTION: A NEW APPROACH

Robert W. Poole, jr., an adviser to National Taxpayers Union's Local Government Center reports a new approach to reducing fire protection costs:

"House fire at 76th and Miller Road!" The dispatch crackles over the Motorola Page-Boy radio attached to Mario Gannarelli's belt. Gannarelli, a custodial supervisor for the city of Scottsdale, Arizona, swings his car into the left lane and heads north for the fire.

Two minutes later, Gannarelli is donning the protective gear stashed in the truck. His six-man crew of auxiliary firefighters already mans the hose lines, working with eight full-time firemen. In short order they have knocked the fire down, and are soon dousing the last of the flames.

Gannarelli is one of about two dozen people responsible for large tax savings in this city of 96,000 people. The program is Scottsdale's "Auxiliary Firefighter" program. Under this plan, city employes from such departments as Parks and Public Works are trained as on-call firefighters, paid only a monthly retainer of about $50, plus $6.38 for each hour worked beyond the normal working day, they make possible substantial cost savings for the city fire department.

The Berekeley, California-based Institute for Local Self Government recently compared the cost and quality of fire protection in Scottsdale and that in three very similar neighboring cities--Mesa, Tempe, and Glendale. Its conclusion: while providing equally good service, the Scottsdale department costs half as much per capita as in other cities. Little wonder that Scottsdale's taxpayers are pleased with the system.

The plan works simply. City employe volunteers are recruited for the program from every department except police and fire. Recruits must pass the same mental and physical tests as regular firemen. They then receive an initial 20 hours of basic training, followed by additional training at the rate of three hours per month.

Volunteers are not expected to become line officers involved in critical decision-making, or expert in all the technical complexities of modern fire fighting. But they do become proficient in from two-third to three-fourth of the fireground tasks.

Once trained, each auxiliary volunteer goes on duty one week out of four, equipped with his radio pager. During works hours he is authorized--and required--to leave his regular city job when summoned by radio to respond to a fire. After hours, he is also required to respond, day or night, unlike conventional volunteers who show up when they're motivated, but don't when they aren't.

The Auxiliary Firefighters benefit more than just the taxpayers. The volunteers appreciate the excitement and extra pay offered by the program. Some of the volunteers get so enthused that they decide to become full-time firemen. The regular fireman benefits, too, since he becomes a man of higher responsibility, often becoming a specialist. His work becomes more demanding, but his high pay can be justified by the department's higher productivity per man-hour, compared with regular fire departments.

Regulars and auxiliaries attest to the popularity of the plan. As the head of the Department, Chief Louis Witzeman puts it: "After working together on a few big fires, the two groups learned to respect and appreciate each other." Turnover is low--only one or two vacancies per year in the 25-man program. And its attractiveness leads to a continual waiting list about as large as the program itself.

In short, Scottsdale's Auxiliary Firefighters program offers cities a way to significantly increase the productivity of their fire department, while saving a bundle of tax dollars.

Is the paid reservist concept unique to Scottsdale? The Scottsdale department also serves 12 other Airzona communities, using the paid reservist system. A number of California cities, including Santa Maria, Lompoc and Carpinteria, use a form of paid reservists. The fire department in these communities save an estimated 25 per cent as a result of the program.

What is relatively unique about the Scottsdale system is its exclusive use of city employes rather than average citizens as reservists. This ensures that reservists show up at first, gives local officials a greater degree of control over the program, and reduces the trend of fire departments to become an isolated little empire, separate from the other city departments.

Can a paid reservist program work elsewhere? With the cooperation of the department heads and solid support for lower taxes from the citizenry, there is no reason why not. Fifteen years of experience in Scottsdale have demonstrated the program's worth. Today's severe budget problems will lead an increasing number of cities to give paid reservists a try.

"What kind of work would you like to do when you grow up?"

That was a question asked of children in a recent survey. Do you know what one of the answers was?

"I don't want to work, I want to be unemployed. That way, I can be paid and not have to do anything."

That shocked the questioners. They thought, as many Americans do, that no one would choose to be idle. They may have remembered back in the 1930s when people stood in long lines waiting to apply for a single job--any job. But times have changed.

The fact is, according to National Taxpayers Union, that almost half of the people in today's unemployment lines were neither laid off nor fired. They are people who have left their jobs voluntarily, or who are just joining the labor force.

Many of today's unemployed could find work if they wanted to, but they would rather take a vacation at your expense. It's that simple. Consider these examples:

The wife of a New York advertising executive making more than $30,000 per year wanted to increase her shopping allowance. She arranged to lose her job so she could collect $98 per week, taxfree, for nearly a year.

A building worker in Los Angeles decided to take a year's vacation to make repairs on his home. He got $96 in unemployment benefits at your expense to help finance his do-it-yourself projects.

A prisoner in a Michigan penitentiary was found to be pocketing your money in "unemployment compensation" while he served his jail term. The only problem he had in qualifying was convincing his brother to stand in line at the unemployment office each week to pick up his check.

You could probably add to this list of abuses from stories you know. As the TV show, CBS Sixty Minutes, proved, it is not just a question of a few isolated cases. Billions of dollars are being paid out each year to people who have decided not to work.

This is what happens when government makes not working more rewarding than working.

CAN 'SOMEBODY ELSE' PAY MY TAXES?

The question of who should bear the major burden of taxes always comes up at election time. This year is no exception, and Tax Foundation received numerous inquiries about the effect of various political proposals to shift the burden.

One Question Foundation researchers found interesting had to do with the result of imposing a 100 per cent rate on all taxable income over $32,000. This, it is proposed, would be one way of collecting more in taxes on above average incomes. But would it help the rest of us?

That amounts to 3.2 per cent of 1977 estimated Federal Budget outlays. It would just barely pay the cost of the Federal government for eleven and a half days. In fact, proposals to place a ceiling on the amount of after-tax income Americans may retain are not very realistic.

The theory that we can raise more revenue by taxing all income over a certain amount by means of 100 per cent is false, however, because as soon as Congress imposes such a tax, any income above the new ceiling would tend to vanish. Robbed of this powerful incentive, individuals would seek elsewhere for the rewards of their hard work and success. This source of revenue would quickly dry up.

To put it simply, it would destroy incentive--and jobs.

A LETTER FROM FRANCOIS

WASHINGTON— Every once in a while I hear from my good friend, Francois, in Paris. I got a letter from him the other day.

Mon Cher Ami,

Forgive me for not writing sooner, but we have been celebrating Abu Daoud's release from a French prison for the past three weeks. Not since the Dreyfus case has there been such a miscarriage of justice as the arrest of Abu Daoud, who was taken into custody for no other reason than he was a suspected Palestinian terrorist who had engineered the Munich massacre of Israeli athletes.

Can you imagine that the poor man, who was traveling on a false passport from Iraq with the French government's permission, had to suffer the indignity of incarceration because the stupid police though he was wanted by the West Germans?

It could have been very embarrassing for France if we had turned him over to West Germany, particularly with our Arab friends who have been kind enough to sell us their oil at $11.80 a barrel. It also would have played havoc with a multimillion dollar deal for fighter planes we were selling to Egypt.

But that, of course, was not the reason for Fance to release him. We are a country of honor and dignity and our only concern, when it comes to Arab terrorists, is that justice is done.

President Giscard d'Estaing was shocked to hear of Abu Daoud's arrest and immediately demanded of the police why they had done it when there were so many unsolved mugging crimes in the Paris Metro which they should have been devoting their time to. He told them in no uncertain terms that arresting Arab terrorists was against French foreign policy and a terrible example of police brutality to the rest of the world.

What nobody realizes is that we French are sticklers for paper work. The West Germans did not fill out the right forms for Abu Daoud's extradition. This was the main problem. There is no way under the sun of the French releasing an Arab terrorist to another country if the paper work is not in order.

President Giscard d'Estaing was furious at the Germans and even considered breaking off relations with them when he saw how sloppy their extradition papers were. "How," he asked an aide, "can these people call themselves a major power when they can't even fill out the correct forms for a simple request for an Arab terrorist? I may be criticized for releasing him, but the honor of French bureaucracy is at stake, and we would be the laughingstock of the world if we gave up Abu Daoud when they sent us Form 19865 instead of Form 17896 according to the Napoleonic Code.

I know there has been some criticism of France and particularly our beloved President for releasing Abu Daoud, but we feel Abu has suffered enough. Not only did he have to spend several nights in jail but he was made to fly home on Air Algeria, which is considered by many as "cruel and unusual punishment."

The President is very angry at the reaction to his decision to free Abu Daoud. But he believes any head of state would have done the same thing. After all, if you start arresting terrorists for no reason, can any hijacker be safe from the knock on the door?

France has shown the world what human rights really means. Terrorists can now walk the streets of Paris safely without fear. This is the message we have tried to send out. We wouldn't do less for Martin Borman.

A tout a l'heure,
Francois

Truck Drivers' Welfare: Teamsters' Pension Fund Documents Show Huge Loss in Weird Real Estate Deals

WASHINGTON – They say the big, 215-pound ex-Notre Dame football hero Dan Shannon, later golden boy of the late Mayor Daley's machine and now high-priced executive director of the Teamsters' notorious Chicago-based pension fund, never loses his temper. Good.

Now he can calmly explain what I call double salarying which brings him over $100,000 a year from the pension money and its allied, virtually unreported, also Chicago-based Health and Welfare Fund.

For being a part-time executive director of the Teamsters' Central States Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund, he drew $61,638.43 in fiscal 1975. And as part-time Welfare Fund executive director for the same areas and same 450,000 teamsters, at the same time Shannon got $41,093.28.

Note that both funds are in the same Teamster-owned building. Since Shannon was once an All-American end and has cut his weight, it should take him all of three minutes to shift from one high-cost executive suite to another.

But let me add swiftly that big Dan is developing himself a reputation for being a true-blue, tell-it-like-it-is fellow. That's good. Then he can tell us why his fund had on its payroll during this 1975 fiscal year one Alvin Baron as a consultant at the rate of $78,750. That's on the pension fund tab. Last November, Baron was indicted on charges of soliciting and getting a $200,000 bribe from a borrower.

Someone could argue that there's plenty of money in the fund. So why be niggardly? Well, that's the truckdrivers' old-age security money. Employers poured in over $303 million that year. And another $174.5 million of the truck owners' cash went into the Health and Welfare Fund. That comes mighty close to half-a-billion annually.

The All-American Mr. Shannon says he handles all this cash as a sacred trust with "caution, prudence and conservatism." Nicely, nicely said. Then why did the pension fund, now under concentrated U. S. Labor Department investigation, write off $68.6 million as worthless assets and investments in 1975? And another $50 million the previous year?

That's almost 10 per cent of the pension fund's total assets. Now comes the question of funding the old-age Teamsters' security money. Under ERISA, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, the funding must be solid. If the asset base decreases, then one of two results must inevitably develop: either the employers must increase their contributions, thus increasing the cost of transportation of vital foods and equipment and thus escalating the public's cost of living.

Or – the monthly pension income on which teamsters now count for comfortable retirement must be slashed.

There's little room here for a full list of the weird multi-million-dollar loans shoveled out like pickle relish at a hot dog stand. Suffice it to ask how come a 34-year-old Allen Glick of San Diego and Las Vegas, who not too long ago was a $200-a-week condominium slaesman, could get loans for his Argent Corp. such as $73.1 million the first time and later $25 million with no known backer. And he got millions more. In all, the Chicago pension fund lent him $146 million.

What standards were used by Brother Shannon's money lenders to give this newcomer, Glick, such vast sums? Have you tried to raise mortgage money recently? Further, there are Alvin and Deborah Malnik. He's a big-time Flordia real estate operator. According to the 1975 pension fund record they borrowed $2.2 million on a first mortgage, "land and building." In the reported year they paid no interest and no principal. They were overdue $206,000 in interest. Why?

There are loans to other real estate operators totalling $92.1 million to one company, $106.5 million to another and inconsequential ones of $15 million. I'm bringing you down slowly to avoid palpitations.

There are some petty cash items which intrigue the investigative soul. Such as $32,456.28 paid to George Priester Aviation Service for "fuel for airplane." And $23,973.31 disbursed to K. C. Aviation for repairs.

Unless Shannon's prudent staffers are drinking the stuff and repairing their swivel chairs, it soulds mighty like the use of a private airplane. Whose plane? And why the rush to get somewhere to lend someone scores of millions of dollars?

There's a separate item of $150,931 for "repairs, maintenance and renewals." What are they repairing? What are they renewing? Consistent requests for documentation have been answered with polite replies like, "Oh, gee, haven't we sent you the material yet?" There doesn't seem to be any hardship in all this travel. The lads spent $80,043 in 1975 for "Employees' food and travel expenses -- net." There's also a welfare fund item of $40,000 for "Employee Food Subsidy."

The pension fund bread does get spread around. The year's legal fees – before the federal investigation started -- came to some $1.9 million. Handling hundreds of millions of dollars in real estate transactions does take some looking after -- especially when you begin analyzing who really got big chunks of cash.

It's all very absorbing. Especially to the Internal Revenue Service, which may yet decide that some of the faithful guardians of the proletarian teamsters' hundreds of millions of dollars are responsible for moneys mismanaged.

Now don't anyone worry. With prudence and the federal investigators, the U. S. Attorney in Chicago and the FBI looking over the pension and welfare fund management shoulders and records, the retiring teamsters' senior citizens may still have a secure and dignified old age.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

A-Plant Built Near Quake Fault

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- It started in the quiet darkness before dawn. Two small leaks, seemingly insignificant, trickled down the canyon wall near the north end of the great earth-filled Teton Dam.

But three minutes before noon on the fearful Sunday, June 5, 1976, the 30-story dam split open, and a massive wall of water roared over the peaceful Idaho countryside. Miraculously, only 14 people died from the flood's ravages. But over a billion dollars worth of Idaho real estate was washed away. Thousands were left homeless.

Subsequent investigations indicated that the dam should not have been built at all. For the Bureau of Reclamation knew, long before a billion gallons of water backed up behind the dam, that it was a risky project. The geology was tricky, the engineering dubious. But unfortunately, Washington was more sensitive to the lobbying for the dam than to the scientific warnings against it. And so the government built a monster called Teton.

Now a worse disaster may be in the making on the California coast. A nuclear power plant is nearing completion near Diablo Canyon, just three miles from an earthquake line called Hosgri Fault.

The Hosgri Fault hadn't been discovered when the government issued the construction permit in 1968. But several eminent geologists warned that more care should be taken to locate possible faults in that earthquake-prone area.

In 1971, Shell Oil geologists announced the discovery of the Hosgri Fault. They found it by using a method, ironically, that the nuclear facility's critics had unsuccessfully urged the government to try.

Yet despite the earthquake danger, the government went ahead with the Diablo Canyon plant. It doesn't take a geologist to figure out that an earthquake could rupture the nuclear power plant. This could cause a radiation spill, with catastrophic consequences.

The construction of the plant could have been stopped in 1971, of course, before the full $1.2 billion it cost to build it was spent. Now it is too late to recover the enormous construction cost; the plant will soon be ready to open. However, it still requires an operating license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which is supposed to protect the public safety.

The NRC is toughening its standards to make the Diablo Canyon plant more earthquake resistant. But no human engineering could guarantee the safety of a plant on the edge of an earthquake fault.

The NRC's project manager for the plant, Dennis Allison, told us that the commission's proposed safety regulations give some comfort "but not much." He acknowledged that the site "turned out to be not such a great place."

Yet so much money and effort has been invested in the plant, and so many powerful politicians have backed it, that there is tremendous pressure to open it. Allison said the operating license "probably" would be granted.

It was also the site, according to congressional findings, that doomed the Teton Dam. But the politicians who promoted the dam and the bureaucrats who planned it have not been held accountable for the billion-dollar disaster. The Bureau of Reclamation, whose mismanagement helped to produce the catastrophe, has been left unscathed.

Congress, of course, conducted its usual investigations, but these didn't perturb Reclamation Commissioner Gil Stamm. He told some bureaucrats, as we reported last year, that he "wasn't losing any sleep at night" over the congressional inquiries.

Now we have discovered additional evidence of his apparent nonchalance over the dam disaster. At obscure House hearings, Stamm pooh-poohed the casualty count, which had then reached only 11. "The total number of deaths is 11, three of which were gunshot wounds, two were suicides, one is a couple of days after the loss of the dam, the other two weeks after the loss ..." he reported blandly to the Water and Power subcommittee.

"There have been a number of heart attacks. I think the drownings were a total of five, two of whom were a couple of 76 and 78 years of age who were warned by relatives in ample time but refused to leave their home. Some time later, when they saw the water rising, they did choose to leave, but it was too late. They were drowned."

It is true that the warnings reached most Idaho residents in time for them to escape the flood. For this, the dam builders deserve no credit; thousands might have been drowned. Stamm assured us that he and his agency are "extremely sensitive" to the Teton Dam disaster. But if sterner measures had been taken against the responsible bureaucrats, the NRC might be a little less willing to issue an operating permit to a nuclear plant on the rim of an earthquake fault.

Korean Drug Ring: Intelligence reports indicate that North Korea is so desperately short of hard currency that it is directing a worldwide drug ring to raise money.

North Korean diplomats in the Scandanavian countries have been ousted for their drug and black-market dealings. But the intelligence reports suggest they were merely part of a worldwide operation directed by the North Korean government itself.

The disgraced diplomats were hastily hustled off to Moscow. But intelligence reports say they have now been shipped back to Pyongyang. There were reports, in fact, that the North Koreans were smuggling drugs to their Communist comrades behind the Iron Curtain.

Footnote: Intelligence reports claimed that North Korean agents have turned up mysteriously in Mexico and Africa.

AVERAGE PROPERTY TAX UP 105 PER CENT IN DECADE

People paid $242 each on average in state and local property taxes in fiscal year 1975, according to Tax Foundation. that's an increase of 105 per cent over the average tax of $118 paid in 1965.

The amount of such taxes, however, varied widely from state to state. The range was from $53 in Alabama to $430 in Massachusetts. The Commonwealth of Massachussets moved up from second place in ten years with an increase in its property tax burden of 147 per cent.

Closer to home, Kansas ranked 18th with an average property tax of $253, while Missouri ranked 32nd with an average property tax of $184.

California dropped from first in 1965 at $197 to third at $373, an increase of 89 per cent. New York remained in fourth place at $369, up 132 per cent.

Alaska had the largest percentage gain with an increase of 298 per cent. The lowest percentage gains were in Idaho where the tax rose 36 per cent and in Utah where it rose 38 per cent.

Among the least burdened besides Alabama were Louisiana at $85, Arkansas at $90, New Mexico and Kentucky at $95, and Mississippi at $97. Increases in those states ranged from 73 to 111 per cent.

FIRE PROTECTION: A NEW APPROACH

Robert W. Poole, jr., an adviser to National Taxpayers Union's Local Government Center reports a new approach to reducing fire protection costs:

"House fire at 76th and Miller Road!" The dispatch crackles over the Motorola Page-Boy radio attached to Mario Gannarelli's belt. Gannarelli, a custodial supervisor for the city of Scottsdale, Arizona, swings his car into the left lane and heads north for the fire.

Two minutes later, Gannarelli is donning the protective gear stashed in the truck. His six-man crew of auxiliary firefighters already mans the hose lines, working with eight full-time firemen. In short order they have knocked the fire down, and are soon dousing the last of the flames.

Mon Cher Ami,

Forgive me for not writing sooner, but we have been celebrating Abu Daoud's release from a French prison for the past three weeks. Not since the Dreyfus case has there been such a miscarriage of justice as the arrest of Abu Daoud, who was taken into custody for no other reason than he was a suspected Palestinian terrorist who had engineered the Munich massacre of Israeli athletes.

Can you imagine that the poor man, who was traveling on a false passport from Iraq with the French government's permission, had to suffer the indignity of incarceration because the stupid police though he was wanted by the West Germans?

It could have been very embarrassing for France if we had turned him over to West Germany, particularly with our Arab friends who have been kind enough to sell us their oil at $11.80 a barrel. It also would have played havoc with a multimillion dollar deal for fighter planes we were selling to Egypt.

But that, of course, was not the reason for Fance to release him. We are a country of honor and dignity and our only concern, when it comes to Arab terrorists, is that justice is done.

President Giscard d'Estaing was shocked to hear of Abu Daoud's arrest and immediately demanded of the police why they had done it when there were so many unsolved mugging crimes in the Paris Metro which they should have been devoting their time to. He told them in no uncertain terms that arresting Arab terrorists was against French foreign policy and a terrible example of police brutality to the rest of the world.

What nobody realizes is that we French are sticklers for paper work. The West Germans did not fill out the right forms for Abu Daoud's extradition. This was the main problem. There is no way under the sun of the French releasing an Arab terrorist to another country if the paper work is not in order.

President Giscard d'Estaing was furious at the Germans and even considered breaking off relations with them when he saw how sloppy their extradition papers were. "How," he asked an aide, "can these people call themselves a major power when they can't even fill out the correct forms for a simple request for an Arab terrorist? I may be criticized for releasing him, but the honor of French bureaucracy is at stake, and we would be the laughingstock of the world if we gave up Abu Daoud when they sent us Form 19865 instead of Form 17896 according to the Napoleonic Code.

I know there has been some criticism of France and particularly our beloved President for releasing Abu Daoud, but we feel Abu has suffered enough. Not only did he have to spend several nights in jail but he was made to fly home on Air Algeria, which is considered by many as "cruel and unusual punishment."

The President is very angry at the reaction to his decision to free Abu Daoud. But he believes any head of state would have done the same thing. After all, if you start arresting terrorists for no reason, can any hijacker be safe from the knock on the door?

France has shown the world what human rights really means. Terrorists can now walk the streets of Paris safely without fear. This is the message we have tried to send out. We wouldn't do less for Martin Borman.

A tout a l'heure,
Francois

Washington Merry-Go-Round

A-Plant Built Near Quake Fault

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- It started in the quiet darkness before dawn. Two small leaks, seemingly insignificant, trickled down the canyon wall near the north end of the great earth-filled Teton Dam.

But three minutes before noon on the fearful Sunday, June 5, 1976, the 30-story dam split open, and a massive wall of water roared over the peaceful Idaho countryside. Miraculously, only 14 people died from the flood's ravages. But over a billion dollars worth of Idaho real estate was washed away. Thousands were left homeless.

Subsequent investigations indicated that the dam should not have been built at all. For the Bureau of Reclamation knew, long before a billion gallons of water backed up behind the dam, that it was a risky project. The geology was tricky, the engineering dubious. But unfortunately, Washington was more sensitive to the lobbying for the dam than to the scientific warnings against it. And so the government built a monster called Teton.

Now a worse disaster may be in the making on the California coast. A nuclear power plant is nearing completion near Diablo Canyon, just three miles from an earthquake line called Hosgri Fault.

The Hosgri Fault hadn't been discovered when the government issued the construction permit in 1968. But several eminent geologists warned that more care should be taken to locate possible faults in that earthquake-prone area.

In 1971, Shell Oil geologists announced the discovery of the Hosgri Fault. They found it by using a method, ironically, that the nuclear facility's critics had unsuccessfully urged the government to try.

Yet despite the earthquake danger, the government went ahead with the Diablo Canyon plant. It doesn't take a geologist to figure out that an earthquake could rupture the nuclear power plant. This could cause a radiation spill, with catastrophic consequences.

The construction of the plant could have been stopped in 1971, of course, before the full $1.2 billion it cost to build it was spent. Now it is too late to recover the enormous construction cost; the plant will soon be ready to open. However, it still requires an operating license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which is supposed to protect the public safety.

The NRC is toughening its standards to make the Diablo Canyon plant more earthquake resistant. But no human engineering could guarantee the safety of a plant on the edge of an earthquake fault.

The NRC's project manager for the plant, Dennis Allison, told us that the commission's proposed safety regulations give some comfort "but not much." He acknowledged that the site "turned out to be not such a great place."

Yet so much money and effort has been invested in the plant, and so many powerful politicians have backed it, that there is tremendous pressure to open it. Allison said the operating license "probably" would be granted.

It was also the site, according to congressional findings, that doomed the Teton Dam. But the politicians who promoted the dam and the bureaucrats who planned it have not been held accountable for the billion-dollar disaster. The Bureau of Reclamation, whose mismanagement helped to produce the catastrophe, has been left unscathed.

Congress, of course, conducted its usual investigations, but these didn't perturb Reclamation Commissioner Gil Stamm. He told some bureaucrats, as we reported last year, that he "wasn't losing any sleep at night" over the congressional inquiries.

Now we have discovered additional evidence of his apparent nonchalance over the dam disaster. At obscure House hearings, Stamm pooh-poohed the casualty count, which had then reached only 11. "The total number of deaths is 11, three of which were gunshot wounds, two were suicides, one is a couple of days after the loss of the dam, the other two weeks after the loss ..." he reported blandly to the Water and Power subcommittee.

"There have been a number of heart attacks. I think the drownings were a total of five, two of whom were a couple of 76 and 78 years of age who were warned by relatives in ample time but refused to leave their home. Some time later, when they saw the water rising, they did choose to leave, but it was too late. They were drowned."

It is true that the warnings reached most Idaho residents in time for them to escape the flood. For this, the dam builders deserve no credit; thousands might have been drowned. Stamm assured us that he and his agency are "extremely sensitive" to the Teton Dam disaster. But if sterner measures had been taken against the responsible bureaucrats, the NRC might be a little less willing to issue an operating permit to a nuclear plant on the rim of an earthquake fault.

Korean Drug Ring: Intelligence reports indicate that North Korea is so desperately short of hard currency that it is directing a worldwide drug ring to raise money.

North Korean diplomats in the Scandanavian countries have been ousted for their drug and black-market dealings. But the intelligence reports suggest they were merely part of a worldwide operation directed by the North Korean government itself.

The disgraced diplomats were hastily hustled off to Moscow. But intelligence reports say they have now been shipped back to Pyongyang. There were reports, in fact, that the North Koreans were smuggling drugs to their Communist comrades behind the Iron Curtain.

Footnote: Intelligence reports claimed that North Korean agents have turned up mysteriously in Mexico and Africa.

Truck Drivers' Welfare: Teamsters' Pension Fund Documents Show Huge Loss in Weird Real Estate Deals

WASHINGTON – They say the big, 215-pound ex-Notre Dame football hero Dan Shannon, later golden boy of the late Mayor Daley's machine and now high-priced executive director of the Teamsters' notorious Chicago-based pension fund, never loses his temper. Good.

Now he can calmly explain what I call double salarying which brings him over $100,000 a year from the pension money and its allied, virtually unreported, also Chicago-based Health and Welfare Fund.

For being a part-time executive director of the Teamsters' Central States Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund, he drew $61,638.43 in fiscal 1975. And as part-time Welfare Fund executive director for the same areas and same 450,000 teamsters, at the same time Shannon got $41,093.28.

Note that both funds are in the same Teamster-owned building. Since Shannon was once an All-American end and has cut his weight, it should take him all of three minutes to shift from one high-cost executive suite to another.

But let me add swiftly that big Dan is developing himself a reputation for being a true-blue, tell-it-like-it-is fellow. That's good. Then he can tell us why his fund had on its payroll during this 1975 fiscal year one Alvin Baron as a consultant at the rate of $78,750. That's on the pension fund tab. Last November, Baron was indicted on charges of soliciting and getting a $200,000 bribe from a borrower.

Someone could argue that there's plenty of money in the fund. So why be niggardly? Well, that's the truckdrivers' old-age security money. Employers poured in over $303 million that year. And another $174.5 million of the truck owners' cash went into the Health and Welfare Fund. That comes mighty close to half-a-billion annually.

The All-American Mr. Shannon says he handles all this cash as a sacred trust with "caution, prudence and conservatism." Nicely, nicely said. Then why did the pension fund, now under concentrated U. S. Labor Department investigation, write off $68.6 million as worthless assets and investments in 1975? And another $50 million the previous year?

That's almost 10 per cent of the pension fund's total assets. Now comes the question of funding the old-age Teamsters' security money. Under ERISA, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, the funding must be solid. If the asset base decreases, then one of two results must inevitably develop: either the employers must increase their contributions, thus increasing the cost of transportation of vital foods and equipment and thus escalating the public's cost of living.

Or – the monthly pension income on which teamsters now count for comfortable retirement must be slashed.

There's little room here for a full list of the weird multi-million-dollar loans shoveled out like pickle relish at a hot dog stand. Suffice it to ask how come a 34-year-old Allen Glick of San Diego and Las Vegas, who not too long ago was a $200-a-week condominium slaesman, could get loans for his Argent Corp. such as $73.1 million the first time and later $25 million with no known backer. And he got millions more. In all, the Chicago pension fund lent him $146 million.

What standards were used by Brother Shannon's money lenders to give this newcomer, Glick, such vast sums? Have you tried to raise mortgage money recently? Further, there are Alvin and Deborah Malnik. He's a big-time Flordia real estate operator. According to the 1975 pension fund record they borrowed $2.2 million on a first mortgage, "land and building." In the reported year they paid no interest and no principal. They were overdue $206,000 in interest. Why?

There are loans to other real estate operators totalling $92.1 million to one company, $106.5 million to another and inconsequential ones of $15 million. I'm bringing you down slowly to avoid palpitations.

There are some petty cash items which intrigue the investigative soul. Such as $32,456.28 paid to George Priester Aviation Service for "fuel for airplane." And $23,973.31 disbursed to K. C. Aviation for repairs.

Unless Shannon's prudent staffers are drinking the stuff and repairing their swivel chairs, it soulds mighty like the use of a private airplane. Whose plane? And why the rush to get somewhere to lend someone scores of millions of dollars?

There's a separate item of $150,931 for "repairs, maintenance and renewals." What are they repairing? What are they renewing? Consistent requests for documentation have been answered with polite replies like, "Oh, gee, haven't we sent you the material yet?" There doesn't seem to be any hardship in all this travel. The lads spent $80,043 in 1975 for "Employees' food and travel expenses -- net." There's also a welfare fund item of $40,000 for "Employee Food Subsidy."

The pension fund bread does get spread around. The year's legal fees – before the federal investigation started -- came to some $1.9 million. Handling hundreds of millions of dollars in real estate transactions does take some looking after -- especially when you begin analyzing who really got big chunks of cash.

It's all very absorbing. Especially to the Internal Revenue Service, which may yet decide that some of the faithful guardians of the proletarian teamsters' hundreds of millions of dollars are responsible for moneys mismanaged.

Now don't anyone worry. With prudence and the federal investigators, the U. S. Attorney in Chicago and the FBI looking over the pension and welfare fund management shoulders and records, the retiring teamsters' senior citizens may still have a secure and dignified old age.

Charleston woman first participant of SeMo U-SIU enrollment policy

CAPE GIRARDEAU--A student in Memphis, Tenn., was once disciplined when it was discovered he was attending two colleges there at the same time. But times change, and Southeast Missouri State University and Southern Illinois University-Carbondale recently concluded on agreement which not only permits a student to enroll in both institutions at the same time, but also makes it advantageous for him to do so.

There is a catch.

The arrangement does not apply to all students, but only to those admitted to graduate study by both the College of Business at Southeast Missouri State and the School of Law at SIU. That narrows the field considerably, but the end result for those who qualify is, after at least three years of year-round study, a master of business administration degree from Southeast Misouri State and a doctor of laws degree from SIU.

Dr. Bill Stacy, dean of the School of Graduate Studies at Southeast Missouri State, said the agreement, in simple terms, allows nine hours of course work taken in the MBA program at SeMo State to count toward the 90 hours of course work needed at SIU for a law degree. And vice versa. SIU students can count nine hours of work taken in their law school curriculum toward the 32-hour MBA requirement at SeMo State.

Students interested in the joint degree program must generally be accepted before they begin their second academic year in the School of Law, according to the agreement, and their first year of law study must be restricted to courses on the SIU campus.

After that, according to Dr. Stacy, nothing prevents a student from being enrolled on both campuses simultaneously. However, he said, it is more likely that a student would take law school courses during the regular academic year and graduate courses in business in the summer.

One Southeast Missouri State student has already been accepted into the program. She is Mrs. Rebecca French of Charleston.

Dr. Stacy said there are three reasons for the joint degree program:

--To provide legal training for individuals interested in business as a career and business training for lawyers interested in business-related areas of law practice.

--To broaden the graduate and professional student's interest, abilities and skills.

--To promote interdisciplinary studies.

It was noted that similar programs at other institutions have been very successful and that this one may serve as a pilot for other interdisciplinary efforts between Southeast Missouri State and SIU.

Carter leaves Washington Press Club laughing at humor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter wanted to have some prepared remarks for his maiden speech before the Washington Press Club. But he said his speechwriters told him not to worry — people always laugh at a president's jokes.

Carter left them laughing Wednesday night. "I was glad to learn he has a sense of humor," said Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J..

The dinner ostensibly honored the members of Congress, but it was the freshman president whom they proceeded to roast.

Rep. Jim Guy Tucker, D-Ark., commented on the peanuts served at dinner, part of a recent fashion for Carter's crop. "If God had meant for us to eat peanut butter, he'd have given us Teflon teeth," Tucker said.

Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, said she was gratified about Carter's religous beliefs. "It's really nice to know that you can call dial-a-prayer and have the President of the United States answer," she cracked.

Carter said he felt a kinship with the successful congressional campaigners.

"We're all fuzzy on the issues. That's proven by the fact that we did get elected. The advantage of being a presidential candidate is that you have a much broader range of issues on which to be fuzzy," he said.

Then he turned to Mrs. Joan Mondale, whose husband, Vice President Walter F. Mondale, is in Europe on the administration's initial diplomatic mission. Carter said Mondale had reported from Paris that it was tough to live up to the administration's moral standards.

In fact, Carter said, Mondale had sent an urgent request for a copy of the November issue of Playboy magazine to help him while away the hours away from his wife. That was the issue in which Carter talked "lust in my heart."

Carter recalled his walk down Pennsylvania Avenue after he was sworn in and the humbling shouts of the crowd: "Look! There goes Billy's brother."

The next morning, he said, he got a phone call from District of Columbia Mayor Walter Washington. The mayor thanked him for "restoring faith in the city by walking in the street unprotected and by getting my brother back to Plains."

Carter told the sellout crowd of more than 1,200, drawn from Congress, the news media and the Cabinet, that he wanted to be partners with them. "I hope we can do better in governing than we have in entertaining each other."

Way-More Feeds files bankruptcy

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The court-appointed receiver of an agricultural products firm which has applied for bankruptcy said Wednesday that he is attempting to determine the firm's liabilities.

Russell B. Anderson of Emporia said the Way-More Feeds, Inc., of St. Joseph Mo., appeared to have considerable assets, but it would probably be 10 days before he knows the entire situation.

Anderson was named as receiver by Judge Benjamin Franklin while he studies the bankruptcy petition fied Jan. 17 and its affect on another suit filed by the Kansas attorney general's office.

The state suit was filed in Doniphan County District Court Jan. 7 seeking state takeover of Way-More until a receiver could be appointed. The suit alleged that the firm was insolvent and that more than 20,000 bushels of grain were missing at elevators in Highland, Parsons and Emporia.

Donald Hoffman, chief of litigation for the Kansas attorney general, said his plans to have a receiver named have been shelved because of the bankruptcy action.

Way-More's principal office is at St. Joseph, where it also has a feed and fertilizer warehouse. The firm also has a liquid feed and fertilizer plant at Atchison

Former Johnson aide is prime canidate for CIA directorship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill D. Moyers, former top aide to Lyndon Johnson, is a prime candidate to be nominated CIA director by President Carter, according to sources inside and outside the administration.

Moyers was out of the country today. A source at CBS News in New York City, where Moyers is the chief reporter and anchorman for "CBS Reports," said he is filming a documentary in Cuba — whose leader the CIA allegedly plotted eight times to kill between 1960 and 1965.

Moyers could not be reached by telephone.

CBS News said he authorized it to say "he has not been offered a job in the Carter administration by the President or anyone claiming to represent the President. He is not contending for any job."

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters: "With regard to speculation about a new CIA director, it's a little early to be speculating about that, and I think if you did you'd get yourself into an embarrassing situation.

"My guidance is not to speculate on Moyers or anyone else."

The administration sources said Moyers is a front runner for the CIA. Sources outside the administration said he has been recommended to Carter by top presidential aides.

The outside sources said there is a reason the administration refused to confirm it. But the sources would not specifv the reason.

Electric clocks are slow due to the cold

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Every electric clock in the Eastern United States ran 28 seconds slow during last week's cold spell because of an overload on electric generating capacity, a utility official says.

Few people apparently noticed the slight discrepancy between their electric clocks and windup clocks or watches, or the difference in time between East and West Coast points. The latter use a separate generating system and were not affected, said Ron Morten, project supervisor for the Omaha Public Power District.

Mortensen said the unusual slowdown began at about 6 a.m. EST on Monday, Jan. 17, when subzero temperatures caused the electrical load to exceed generating capability for the system that serves the entire Eastern United States.

"The coal piles were frozen up and they couldn't get enough fuel. Coal barges were freezing in the rivers and couldn't get the coal to the plants," Mortensen said.

He said electrical output slipped from the usual 60 cycles to 59.83 cycles, causing clocks to slow over the next day and a half, until they were behind 28 seconds for an estimated six hours.

To correct the time lapse, "what we had to do is overspeed our generators, running fast for an equal amount of time to get the thing back up to zero time error," Mortensen said.

OPPD spokesman Fred Petersen compared the entire operation to long-distance driving. "If you average 60 miles an hour over the trip then you slow down to 50 mph," he said, "you have to speed up then to make up for lost time."

The lost time was made up by 2 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 20, he said.

Texas, which controls its own power generation, was not affected.

Carter recalled his walk down Pennsylvania Avenue after he was sworn in and the humbling shouts of the crowd: "Look! There goes Billy's brother."

The next morning, he said, he got a phone call from District of Columbia Mayor Walter Washington. The mayor thanked him for "restoring faith in the city by walking in the street unprotected and by getting my brother back to Plains."

Carter told the sellout crowd of more than 1,200, drawn from Congress, the news media and the Cabinet, that he wanted to be partners with them. "I hope we can do better in governing than we have in entertaining each other."

Way-More Feeds files bankruptcy

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The court-appointed receiver of an agricultural products firm which has applied for bankruptcy said Wednesday that he is attempting to determine the firm's liabilities.

Russell B. Anderson of Emporia said the Way-More Feeds, Inc., of St. Joseph Mo., appeared to have considerable assets, but it would probably be 10 days before he knows the entire situation.

Anderson was named as receiver by Judge Benjamin Franklin while he studies the bankruptcy petition fied Jan. 17 and its affect on another suit filed by the Kansas attorney general's office.

The state suit was filed in Doniphan County District Court Jan. 7 seeking state takeover of Way-More until a receiver could be appointed. The suit alleged that the firm was insolvent and that more than 20,000 bushels of grain were missing at elevators in Highland, Parsons and Emporia.

Donald Hoffman, chief of litigation for the Kansas attorney general, said his plans to have a receiver named have been shelved because of the bankruptcy action.

Way-More's principal office is at St. Joseph, where it also has a feed and fertilizer warehouse. The firm also has a liquid feed and fertilizer plant at Atchison

Former Johnson aide is prime canidate for CIA directorship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill D. Moyers, former top aide to Lyndon Johnson, is a prime candidate to be nominated CIA director by President Carter, according to sources inside and outside the administration.

Moyers was out of the country today. A source at CBS News in New York City, where Moyers is the chief reporter and anchorman for "CBS Reports," said he is filming a documentary in Cuba — whose leader the CIA allegedly plotted eight times to kill between 1960 and 1965.

Moyers could not be reached by telephone.

CBS News said he authorized it to say "he has not been offered a job in the Carter administration by the President or anyone claiming to represent the President. He is not contending for any job."

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters: "With regard to speculation about a new CIA director, it's a little early to be speculating about that, and I think if you did you'd get yourself into an embarrassing situation.

"My guidance is not to speculate on Moyers or anyone else."

The administration sources said Moyers is a front runner for the CIA. Sources outside the administration said he has been recommended to Carter by top presidential aides.

The outside sources said there is a reason the administration refused to confirm it. But the sources would not specifv the reason.

Electric clocks are slow due to the cold

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Every electric clock in the Eastern United States ran 28 seconds slow during last week's cold spell because of an overload on electric generating capacity, a utility official says.

Few people apparently noticed the slight discrepancy between their electric clocks and windup clocks or watches, or the difference in time between East and West Coast points. The latter use a separate generating system and were not affected, said Ron Morten, project supervisor for the Omaha Public Power District.

Mortensen said the unusual slowdown began at about 6 a.m. EST on Monday, Jan. 17, when subzero temperatures caused the electrical load to exceed generating capability for the system that serves the entire Eastern United States.

"The coal piles were frozen up and they couldn't get enough fuel. Coal barges were freezing in the rivers and couldn't get the coal to the plants," Mortensen said.

He said electrical output slipped from the usual 60 cycles to 59.83 cycles, causing clocks to slow over the next day and a half, until they were behind 28 seconds for an estimated six hours.

To correct the time lapse, "what we had to do is overspeed our generators, running fast for an equal amount of time to get the thing back up to zero time error," Mortensen said.

OPPD spokesman Fred Petersen compared the entire operation to long-distance driving. "If you average 60 miles an hour over the trip then you slow down to 50 mph," he said, "you have to speed up then to make up for lost time."

The lost time was made up by 2 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 20, he said.

Texas, which controls its own power generation, was not affected.

Contract changes get port authority okay

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Southeast Missouri Port Authority Tuesday approved changes in its contract with Delta Engineering Consultants Inc. of Cape Girardeau, subject to approval by the Ozark Regional Commission (ORC).

The contract changes had been recommended by ORC Director Frank Euin III of Little Rock, Ark., in a letter to the Southeast Missouri Port Authority dated Dec. 22.

The ORC is funding $20,000 toward the $26,000 cost of a short-range feasibility study the port authority awarded to Delta Engineering Inc.

A list of changes suggested by the ORC were: Extending the term of the contract, which Delta extended from nine months to 21 months, with the effective date of the contract being June 7, 1976, and amending the reporting schedule by Delta Engineering to be submitted to ORC.

The ORC had required progress reports on definite dates. The port authority, in the amended contract, authorized Delta to tie the reporting dates in with the two-phase study, with the first phase report being made 60 days after approval of the contract by ORC and a progress report being made four months after the filing of the first report.

If approval is received from the Ozark Regional Commission by March 1, the first progress report would be due by May 1 and the progress report on phase one would be due Sept. 1. Then, Nov. 1 would be the target date to start phase two, under which a progress report due next January and the final report by May 1978.

Another item in the letter from Euin requested a change in the payment schedule to bimonthly payments. Clarification of work to be done on industrial development was also requested.

The amended contract outlines the expansion of the study by Delta to include: "In conducting the evaluation, attention will also be directed to industrial prospects in the vicinity and each of the sites will be examined from the viewpoint of adjoining industrial development. This examination will include the possible development characteristics of an industrial park and will include a concept of how land adjoining could be used by one or more industries."

Further, the ORC questioned the ownership of documents made by Delta Engineering. James G. Yallaly, principal engineer for Delta who was also present at the meeting, explained this clause in the contract between the Delta and the port authority meant mainly design documents and not what was required for the ORC grant.

Also, Euin's letter questioned the charges by the engineering firm for termination expenses for reassignment of personnel should the contract be terminated.

In the amended contract, Yallaly said there was to be no charge for reassignment of personnel should the contract be terminated, and Yallaly added that original contract with the port authority included a clause allowing the authority to secure additional services by a resolution of the authority. This, he said, was included in the event audits were required by the General Accounting Office, charges would be made on a hourly basis for time spent with the auditors. However, in the amended contract, this can be deleted by the authority, he added.

In further business, A. J. Seier, secretary of the port authority, reported the need for secretarial services for correspondence. He said since he no longer has the services he had while in the law practice.

Seier reported he has found secretarial services which would cost around $25 per month, which members of the commission thought was a fair price and approved a motion that up to $25 per month be provided for these services. The commissioners further established the mailing address for the Southeast Missouri Port Authority as Common Pleas Courthouse, Cape Girardeau, Mo. 63701.

Chairman C. W. Rushing reported having been contacted Jan. 18 by Tony Meyers, in behalf of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, requesting a meeting with the authority to discuss the Corps of Engineers long-range feasibility study for a port facility.

The meeting was approved.

Lehr sends Chaffee road district a bill

CHAFFEE — A bill for $667.63 from State Auditor George Lehr's office has been received by the Chaffee Special Road District for a three-year audit conducted recently.

A petition drive that called for a city audit also included the request for an audit of the road district. It was done separately, however, with the cost to be borne by the district and not the city,

Jack Limbaugh, secretary-treasurer of the road commissioners, said he believed the fee to be a reasonable one, and added it will be paid when the road district meets Feb. 4 at the city hall.

The city has refused to pay a bill of $7,700 for a one-year audit of the city's books. That audit was also conducted by the state auditor's office.

Membership drive meeting tonight with Jaycees

BENTON — The annual membership drive for the Benton Jaycees is now in progress for young men between the ages of 18 and 25.

The club will hold a special membership meeting at the Jaycee meeting hall above the Old Benton Bank at 7:30 p.m. today. Young men who would like to know more about being a Jaycee are encouraged to attend.

Some of the many activities that the Benton Jaycees sponsor are the Jaycee Joyland Playground area, the Haunted House and tennis court upkeep. The club has donated $1,000 for a new roof on the community building; $1,000 for matching funds for the new Benton Ball Park and $900 to Kelly High School's 1976 senior class. They also support the Benton Little League and Brownie Troop No. 62.

Contract changes get port authority okay

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Southeast Missouri Port Authority Tuesday approved changes in its contract with Delta Engineering Consultants Inc. of Cape Girardeau, subject to approval by the Ozark Regional Commission (ORC).

The contract changes had been recommended by ORC Director Frank Euin III of Little Rock, Ark., in a letter to the Southeast Missouri Port Authority dated Dec. 22.

The ORC is funding $20,000 toward the $26,000 cost of a short-range feasibility study the port authority awarded to Delta Engineering Inc.

A list of changes suggested by the ORC were: Extending the term of the contract, which Delta extended from nine months to 21 months, with the effective date of the contract being June 7, 1976, and amending the reporting schedule by Delta Engineering to be submitted to ORC.

The ORC had required progress reports on definite dates. The port authority, in the amended contract, authorized Delta to tie the reporting dates in with the two-phase study, with the first phase report being made 60 days after approval of the contract by ORC and a progress report being made four months after the filing of the first report.

If approval is received from the Ozark Regional Commission by March 1, the first progress report would be due by May 1 and the progress report on phase one would be due Sept. 1. Then, Nov. 1 would be the target date to start phase two, under which a progress report due next January and the final report by May 1978.

Another item in the letter from Euin requested a change in the payment schedule to bi-monthly payments. Clarification of work to be done on industrial development was also requested.

The amended contract outlines the expansion of the study by Delta to include: "In conducting the evaluation, attention will also be directed to industrial prospects in the vicinity and each of the sites will be examined from the viewpoint of adjoining industrial development. This examination will include the possible development characteristics of an industrial park and will include a concept of how land adjoining could be used by one or more industries."

Further, the ORC questioned the ownership of documents made by Delta Engineering. James G. Yallaly, principal engineer for Delta who was also present at the meeting, explained this clause in the contract between the Delta and the port authority meant mainly design documents and not what was required for the ORC grant.

Also, Euin's letter questioned the charges by the engineering firm for termination expenses for reassignment of personnel should the contract be terminated.

In the amended contract, Yallaly said there was to be no charge for reassignment of personnel should the contract be terminated, and Yallaly added that original contract with the port authority included a clause allowing the authority to secure additional services by a resolution of the authority. This, he said, was included in the event audits were required by the General Accounting Office, charges would be made on a hourly basis for time spent with the auditors. However, in the amended contract, this can be deleted by the authority, he added.

In further business, A. J. Seier, secretary of the port authority, reported the need for secretarial services for correspondence. He said since he no longer has the services he had while in the law practice.

Seier reported he has found secretarial services which would cost around $25 per month, which members of the commission thought was a fair price and approved a motion that up to $25 per month be provided for these services. The commissioners further established the mailing address for the Southeast Missouri Port Authority as Common Pleas Courthouse, Cape Girardeau, Mo. 63701.

Chairman C. W. Rushing reported having been contacted Jan. 18 by Tony Meyers, in behalf of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, requesting a meeting with the authority to discuss the Corps of Engineers long-range feasibility study for a port facility.

The meeting was approved.

Lehr sends Chaffee road district a bill

CHAFFEE — A bill for $667.63 from State Auditor George Lehr's office has been received by the Chaffee Special Road District for a three-year audit conducted recently.

A petition drive that called for a city audit also included the request for an audit of the road district. It was done separately, however, with the cost to be borne by the district and not the city.

Jack Limbaugh, secretary-treasurer of the road commissioners, said he believed the fee to be a reasonable one, and added it will be paid when the road district meets Feb. 4 at the city hall.

The city has refused to pay a bill of $7,700 for a one-year audit of the city's books. That audit was also conducted by the state auditor's office.

Membership drive meeting tonight with Jaycees

BENTON — The annual membership drive for the Benton Jaycees is now in progress for young men between the ages of 18 and 25.

The club will hold a special membership meeting at the Jaycee meeting hall above the Old Benton Bank at 7:30 p.m. today. Young men who would like to know more about being a Jaycee are encouraged to attend.

Some of the many activities that the Benton Jaycees sponsor are the Jaycee Joyland Playground area, the Haunted House and tennis court upkeep. The club has donated $1,000 for a new roof on the community building; $1,000 for matching funds for the new Benton Ball Park and $900 to Kelly High School's 1976 senior class. They also support the Benton Little League and Brownie Troop No. 62.

The (un) organized handbag

I've never carried what you would call your basic organized handbag.

To put it another way . . . if Monty Hall had offered a million dollars to anyone having a 1958 baby tooth, a set of keys to a car sold three years ago, a fuzzy breath mint, and a half pair of footlets in their purse, I'd be a millionaire today.

As with most vices, the only people this bothers are the reformers . . . the do-gooders who won't rest until you put your car keys on a clip, with a flashlight, at the top of your bag, in a spot marked KEYS.

One of the more zealous members of the Organized Handbag movement is my mother. She cannot comprehend why I carry around a pack of gum with no gum in it, or what possible use I will have for two "C" batteries. She couldn't wait to give me one of those handbags for my birthday that has a place for everything. It looked like a Post Office.

"The first thing we're going to do is to sit down and get it all organized," she said, "and you'll never have to rummage through your purse again. Give me your checkbook."

"I don't have it," I said. "I just carry a few blank checks."

"What do you record them on when you have written them?"

"My grocery tape."

"Where do you keep the grocery tape?"

"In the brown bags where I get my groceries."

"And they are?"

"Under the sink waiting for the garbage."

"I see. Well now, where's your passport?"

"My what?"

"Your passport. You know, permission to enter a foreign country."

"I only use it when I enter your grandson's bedroom."

"And here's a bag for your makeup. Where is that?"

"I'm wearing it."

"Look," she said, "why don't you fill up all these little pockets and openings yourself and surprise me."

It isn't often my mother is right. But I have to admit that purse organizer is the greatest thing to come down the pike since the no-burp cucumber.

I put all my raffle tickets under TRAVELER'S CHECKS, my hair clips and single earrings under CLUB AFFILIATIONS, the trading stamps jammed in the PASSPORT pocket, a pair of fake eyelashes under MAJOR CREDIT CARDS, and two worn-out washers that I have to replace in the MAKEUP bag. I'm going down in the bag now and look for my car keys. If I'm not back in 20 minutes, call for help.

today's woman

"more spice than everything nice"

Woman outsmarts computer

DALLAS (AP) — They said it couldn't be done, but a woman was able to out-calculate the prized Univac 1108 computer operated by the National Bureau of Standards.

The woman, Shakuntala Devi, solved in 50 seconds what it took Univac more than a minute to compute—the 23rd root of a 201-digit number.

The Guiness Book of World Records once recorded a similar feat, but it was a figure one digit smaller and the time involved was more than 10.5 minutes.

It took a Southern Methodist University professor almost four minutes to write the number on the chalk board and it took Miss Devi 50 seconds to compute the answer.

In a warmup before the record setting calculation, Mrs. Devi, recognized as a mathematics Houdini, told students in the crowd the days of the week their birthdays had occured. When one asked her the day of the week for Feb. 29, 1941, she replied "What sort of calendar do you follow?"

In setting up the Univac to compete with the woman, workers fed 13,466 instructions and 4,883 data locations into the machine. Because someone feared that the woman might have memorized the answer for every possible combination of numbers, the computer was asked to figure the odds against her coming up with the correct answer. The odds were 58 million to 1.

After setting the record, the woman said she was not so concerned about re-writing the Guiness Book of World Records. "I wasn't trying to compete against the human's 10 and a half minutes," she said. "I wanted to be quicker than the computer."

They are the parents of five daughters and three sons, five of whom are living. The daughters living are Mrs. Maudie Hawkins of Baxter; Mrs. Dovie Whitehead and Mrs. Lovell Lazenby, Anderson, Ind. The sons that are living are Edward Hooten of Baxter and Ernest Hooten of East Prairie, Mo.

The Hootens are the grandparents of 15 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Keep a thimble in your coffee can in addition to the measuring spoon. Use it as a cap over the center tube in the percolator basket when putting in the dry coffee and have no grounds in the coffee nor any wasted coffee. At the present price of coffee every ground counts.

DEAR POLLY — When you have a percolator to discard save it and use as a holder for grease you may save to use again. The coffee holder serves as a good strainer as the grease is poured into the pot, and the spout enables one to pour out the grease (melted again, of course) without any spilling.

Supreme Court to reconsider pregnancy benefits decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rights of pregnant workers, handed a severe setback by the Supreme Court 4last month, once again will be studied by the nine men who make up the nation's highest court.

The justices voted Tuesday to decide when employers are justified in treating pregnancy differently than a disability that would be covered by various fringe-benefit plans.

On Dec. 7, the court ruled that private companies offering employes disability insurance do not have to include pregnancy benefits. Women representing the 100,000 female employes of General Electric had charged the firm with sex discrimination in that case.

Feminist groups now are lobbying Congress in an effort to have such protection written into the Civil Rights Act as a specific amendment.

On Tuesday, the court agreed to hear arguments in pregnancy cases from Nashville, Tenn., and Richmond, Calif. The cases present several new questions for the court to resolve:

—Is a requirement that a woman leave her job at a specific time in her pregnancy, even though she and her doctor say she is able to continue working, a violation of her civil rights?

—If a company gives sick pay for an assortment of disabling ailments, but tells pregnant workers they must take vacation time to have their babies, is the firm guilty of sex discrimination?

—Can a private employer legally strip seniority status from women who return to work after pregnancy leave?

In other matters, the court:

—Ruled in a 6-3 vote that the right of criminal suspects to be told by police that they do not have to talk to interrogators only applies to suspects officially arrested and in police custody.

Some observers worried that the court might have jeopardized the landmark opinion on the rights of criminal suspects known as the Miranda decision, by laying out for police officers willing to take the legal risks such a definitive detour for bypassing the Miranda limitations on questioning suspects.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, one of the court's dissenters Tuesday, said in a footnote to his opinion, "I trust today's decision does not suggest that police officers can circumvent Miranda by deliberately postponing the official arrest and the giving of Miranda warnings until the necessary incriminating statements have been obtained."

—Again indicated that it wants federal judges to apply more stringent tests before ordering widespread school desegregation. It struck down such a plan for Indianapolis schools. The justices left intact, however, a desegregation plan in effect for Louisville, Ky., area schools for more than a year.

—Agreed to decide if five-person juries are valid. The court in 1970 ruled that juries do not have to have 12 members but did not specify if a jury of less than six members is legal in criminal cases.

Sunglasses can flatter face

LEOMINSTER,Mass.(AP)— Fashion-conscious women are discovering that the right pair of sunglasses can be both a beauty and personality accessory, according to a stylist for a firm that manufactures them.

"When frames complement the face, sunglasses can truly flatter. They also tell the world something about the wearer," explains Maureen Owens.

Selecting sunglasses to enhance facial contour is easy, she points out, offering this rule of thumb: Choose sunglasses with frames having a different shape from the face.

To establish what that shape is stand in front of a mirror, hair wrapped in a towel, she suggests. Use soap or cream to draw the face's outline on the mirror. Then simply stand back, observe and decide what shape is reflected there.

Ms. Owens, a stylist for Foster Grant here, offers this advice about selecting sunglasses.

Women with round faces do well in modified square or octagonal frames that don't extend beyond the face. They should stay away from sunglasses with round lenses. A faceful of circles adds pounds to the appearance.

Square faces need round or oval-shaped sunglasses. Pear-shaped faces look better in frames that slant slightly upward.

Women with thin or long oval-shaped faces are lucky, Ms. Owens notes. They can wear almost any frame style except for those super skinny ones.

Big family

Quality and quantity

ST. JOSEPH (AP) — David W. and Lula Blakley got their family together all at once for a recent reunion, and all 18 Blakley children showed up, some with their families.

It added up to a grand total of 30, and pleasant confusion.

The remarkable thing about the Blakleys is not so much their number as their achievements.

The 15 boys and three girls have excelled as students and athletes. Six children have completed college and three are currently enrolled. The three who are still in high school and two in junior high intend to further their education. Of the six college graduates, three have master's degrees. Thirteen of the brood still live at home.

Mrs. Blakley, at 57, is relaxed, philosophical and good-humored about her family. David, 63, had his own trash-hauling business for 30 years, and worked in a foundry at night. He is semi-retired now, and cutting down on work.

Did they plan to have so large a family?

"Not really," Lula answered. "We thought two boys and two girls would be nice. I look back now and wonder how we ever managed. We had some hard times. We've never been hungry or cold, and we were never on welfare."

"We always let them know we expected them to be the very best," Mrs. Blakley said. "And it hasn't taken a lot of nagging. They all wanted to do well in school.

"I think the most important thing is to take time to talk to your children. And there's got to be discipline. I still want to know where my kids are, and who they're with and what they're doing. And I don't care how grown up they are, I still talk to them if I think they need it."

It is also important for children to have fun at home, she added. "You've got to have things kids like. And their friends should feel welcome. The dining room table is big enough for us all to sit around."

I've done a lot of praying," Mrs. Blakley continued. "Neither Dave nor I smoke or drink, and we don't do any cussing to yelling. We're just not like that."

"That's what life is all about — taking each day as it comes along and, with God's help, doing the best you can with it."

Ann Landers

Couple says beatings have enhanced their life

Dear Ann: Thanks for running the latter about the couple who enjoyed beating each other as a prelude to sex. Please add two more to the list. My wife and I have been whipping each other for several years and it is a highly emotional experience.

Your Delaware reader noted that the centers of pain and pleasure are not far apart. Surely you know that pain and sex are often inseparable. We tried straight sex at the beginning and it left us exhausted, frustrated and unfulfilled.

Now we have great fun expressing our primitive feelings. We look forward to these lively encounters. Even though we end up with scratches, teeth marks and purple bruises, life is much more exciting.

I'm sure you don't approve but I hope you'll print my letter so the couple in Delaware will know there are others. -- We Love Cupid's Sting

Dear Sting: There are MANY others and I've heard from dozens. As for "approval," what I think is not important. I only give advice when asked. I'm not a judge or jury. If people enjoy scratching, biting and bruising one another (and call it love, yet), that's their business. But I'll tell you what I told the other couple. How nice that you two found each other. You belong together.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 45-year-old widow who needs to know if it is true that Saint Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, was not married when she became pregnant with Our Savior.

My 23-year-old daughter is single and living with a 26-year-old fellow as though they were man and wife. This has been going on for two years. My daughter claims she is pregnant from her bed partner and when she gives birth to the child, she will become a Saint, like Mary. She is a very religious girl and convinced this is true.

I am not so sure. In fact, I think maybe her bed partner talked her into the whole thing. Please answer in the paper because I can't risk getting any letters from Ann Landers at home. Thank you. – Troubled Widow

Dear T.W.: I checked with a professor at one of the leading Catholic universities in the U.S., and this is what he said:

"Because they had no Ann Landers in those days, people in the Gospels occasionally had to rely on angels for the resolution of family problems.

"Mary became pregnant when she was engaged. An angel advised her to marry Joseph, her fiance, bear the child, and be good to both.

"Joseph was disturbed when Mary told him she was pregnant. But an angel advised him to marry her anyway, to cherish mother and child, and to be more patient about trying to figure out what God had in mind.

"Neither Mary nor Joseph would have been called Saint if they had been bed partners before their marriage.

The (un) organized handbag

I've never carried what you would call your basic organized handbag.

To put it another way . . . if Monty Hall had offered a million dollars to anyone having a 1958 baby tooth, a set of keys to a car sold three years ago, a fuzzy breath mint, and a half pair of footlets in their purse, I'd be a millionaire today.

As with most vices, the only people this bothers are the reformers . . . the do-gooders who won't rest until you put your car keys on a clip, with a flashlight, at the top of your bag, in a spot marked KEYS.

One of the more zealous members of the Organized Handbag movement is my mother. She cannot comprehend why I carry around a pack of gum with no gum in it, or what possible use I will have for two "C" batteries. She couldn't wait to give me one of those handbags for my birthday that has a place for everything. It looked like a Post Office.

"The first thing we're going to do is to sit down and get it all organized," she said, "and you'll never have to rummage through your purse again. Give me your checkbook."

"I don't have it," I said. "I just carry a few blank checks."

"What do you record them on when you have written them?"

"My grocery tape."

"Where do you keep the grocery tape?"

"In the brown bags where I get my groceries."

"And they are?"

"Under the sink waiting for the garbage."

"I see. Well now, where's your passport?"

"My what?"

"Your passport. You know, permission to enter a foreign country."

"I only use it when I enter your grandson's bedroom."

"And here's a bag for your makeup. Where is that?"

"I'm wearing it."

"Look," she said, "why don't you fill up all these little pockets and openings yourself and surprise me."

It isn't often my mother is right. But I have to admit that purse organizer is the greatest thing to come down the pike since the no-burp cucumber.

I put all my raffle tickets under TRAVELER'S CHECKS, my hair clips and single earrings under CLUB AFFILIATIONS, the trading stamps jammed in the PASSPORT pocket, a pair of fake eyelashes under MAJOR CREDIT CARDS, and two worn-out washers that I have to replace in the MAKEUP bag. I'm going down in the bag now and look for my car keys. If I'm not back in 20 minutes, call for help.

today's woman

"more spice than everything nice"

Woman outsmarts computer

DALLAS (AP) — They said it couldn't be done, but a woman was able to out-calculate the prized Univac 1108 computer operated by the National Bureau of Standards.

The woman, Shakuntala Devi, solved in 50 seconds what it took Univac more than a minute to compute—the 23rd root of a 201-digit number.

The Guiness Book of World Records once recorded a similar feat, but it was a figure one digit smaller and the time involved was more than 10.5 minutes.

It took a Southern Methodist University professor almost four minutes to write the number on the chalk board and it took Miss Devi 50 seconds to compute the answer.

In a warmup before the record setting calculation, Mrs. Devi, recognized as a mathematics Houdini, told students in the crowd the days of the week their birthdays had occured. When one asked her the day of the week for Feb. 29, 1941, she replied "What sort of calendar do you follow?"

In setting up the Univac to compete with the woman, workers fed 13,466 instructions and 4,883 data locations into the machine. Because someone feared that the woman might have memorized the answer for every possible combination of numbers, the computer was asked to figure the odds against her coming up with the correct answer. The odds were 58 million to 1.

After setting the record, the woman said she was not so concerned about re-writing the Guiness Book of World Records. "I wasn't trying to compete against the human's 10 and a half minutes," she said. "I wanted to be quicker than the computer."

The Hootens are the grandparents of 15 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren.

Supreme Court to reconsider pregnancy benefits decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rights of pregnant workers, handed a severe setback by the Supreme Court 4last month, once again will be studied by the nine men who make up the nation's highest court.

The justices voted Tuesday to decide when employers are justified in treating pregnancy differently than a disability that would be covered by various fringe-benefit plans.

On Dec. 7, the court ruled that private companies offering employes disability insurance do not have to include pregnancy benefits. Women representing the 100,000 female employes of General Electric had charged the firm with sex discrimination in that case.

Feminist groups now are lobbying Congress in an effort to have such protection written into the Civil Rights Act as a specific amendment.

On Tuesday, the court agreed to hear arguments in pregnancy cases from Nashville, Tenn., and Richmond, Calif. The cases present several new questions for the court to resolve:

—Is a requirement that a woman leave her job at a specific time in her pregnancy, even though she and her doctor say she is able to continue working, a violation of her civil rights?

—If a company gives sick pay for an assortment of disabling ailments, but tells pregnant workers they must take vacation time to have their babies, is the firm guilty of sex discrimination?

—Can a private employer legally strip seniority status from women who return to work after pregnancy leave?

In other matters, the court:

—Ruled in a 6-3 vote that the right of criminal suspects to be told by police that they do not have to talk to interrogators only applies to suspects officially arrested and in police custody.

Some observers worried that the court might have jeopardized the landmark opinion on the rights of criminal suspects known as the Miranda decision, by laying out for police officers willing to take the legal risks such a definitive detour for bypassing the Miranda limitations on questioning suspects.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, one of the court's dissenters Tuesday, said in a footnote to his opinion, "I trust today's decision does not suggest that police officers can circumvent Miranda by deliberately postponing the official arrest and the giving of Miranda warnings until the necessary incriminating statements have been obtained."

—Again indicated that it wants federal judges to apply more stringent tests before ordering widespread school desegregation. It struck down such a plan for Indianapolis schools. The justices left intact, however, a desegregation plan in effect for Louisville, Ky., area schools for more than a year.

—Agreed to decide if five-person juries are valid. The court in 1970 ruled that juries do not have to have 12 members but did not specify if a jury of less than six members is legal in criminal cases.

Big family

Quality and quantity

ST. JOSEPH (AP) — David W. and Lula Blakley got their family together all at once for a recent reunion, and all 18 Blakley children showed up, some with their families.

The remarkable thing about the Blakleys is not so much their number as their achievements.

The 15 boys and three girls have excelled as students and athletes. Six children have completed college and three are currently enrolled. The three who are still in high school and two in junior high intend to further their education. Of the six college graduates, three have master's degrees. Thirteen of the brood still live at home.

Mrs. Blakley, at 57, is relaxed, philosophical and good-humored about her family. David, 63, had his own trash-hauling business for 30 years, and worked in a foundry at night. He is semi-retired now, and cutting down on work.

Did they plan to have so large a family?

"Not really," Lula answered. "We thought two boys and two girls would be nice. I look back now and wonder how we ever managed. We had some hard times. We've never been hungry or cold, and we were never on welfare."

"We always let them know we expected them to be the very best," Mrs. Blakley said. "And it hasn't taken a lot of nagging. They all wanted to do well in school.

"I think the most important thing is to take time to talk to your children. And there's got to be discipline. I still want to know where my kids are, and who they're with and what they're doing. And I don't care how grown up they are, I still talk to them if I think they need it."

It is also important for children to have fun at home, she added. "You've got to have things kids like. And their friends should feel welcome. The dining room table is big enough for us all to sit around."

I've done a lot of praying," Mrs. Blakley continued. "Neither Dave nor I smoke or drink, and we don't do any cussing to yelling. We're just not like that."

"That's what life is all about — taking each day as it comes along and, with God's help, doing the best you can with it."

Sunglasses can flatter face

LEOMINSTER, Mass. (AP)— Fashion-conscious women are discovering that the right pair of sunglasses can be both a beauty and personality accessory, according to a stylist for a firm that manufactures them.

"When frames complement the face, sunglasses can truly flatter. They also tell the world something about the wearer," explains Maureen Owens.

Selecting sunglasses to enhance facial contour is easy, she points out, offering this rule of thumb: Choose sunglasses with frames having a different shape from the face.

To establish what that shape is stand in front of a mirror, hair wrapped in a towel, she suggests. Use soap or cream to draw the face's outline on the mirror. Then simply stand back, observe and decide what shape is reflected there.

Ms. Owens, a stylist for Foster Grant here, offers this advice about selecting sunglasses.

Women with round faces do well in modified square or octagonal frames that don't extend beyond the face. They should stay away from sunglasses with round lenses. A faceful of circles adds pounds to the appearance.

Square faces need round or oval-shaped sunglasses. Pear-shaped faces look better in frames that slant slightly upward.

Women with thin or long oval-shaped faces are lucky, Ms. Owens notes. They can wear almost any frame style except for those super skinny ones.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Keep a thimble in your coffee can in addition to the measuring spoon. Use it as a cap over the center tube in the percolator basket when putting in the dry coffee and have no grounds in the coffee nor any wasted coffee. At the present price of coffee every ground counts.

DEAR POLLY — When you have a percolator to discard save it and use as a holder for grease you may save to use again. The coffee holder serves as a good strainer as the grease is poured into the pot, and the spout enables one to pour out the grease (melted again, of course) without any spilling.

Ann Landers

Couple says beatings have enhanced their life

Dear Ann: Thanks for running the latter about the couple who enjoyed beating each other as a prelude to sex. Please add two more to the list. My wife and I have been whipping each other for several years and it is a highly emotional experience.

Your Delaware reader noted that the centers of pain and pleasure are not far apart. Surely you know that pain and sex are often inseparable. We tried straight sex at the beginning and it left us exhausted, frustrated and unfulfilled.

Now we have great fun expressing our primitive feelings. We look forward to these lively encounters. Even though we end up with scratches, teeth marks and purple bruises, life is much more exciting.

I'm sure you don't approve but I hope you'll print my letter so the couple in Delaware will know there are others. -- We Love Cupid's Sting

Dear Sting: There are MANY others and I've heard from dozens. As for "approval," what I think is not important. I only give advice when asked. I'm not a judge or jury. If people enjoy scratching, biting and bruising one another (and call it love, yet), that's their business. But I'll tell you what I told the other couple. How nice that you two found each other. You belong together.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 45-year-old widow who needs to know if it is true that Saint Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, was not married when she became pregnant with Our Savior.

My 23-year-old daughter is single and living with a 26-year-old fellow as though they were man and wife. This has been going on for two years. My daughter claims she is pregnant from her bed partner and when she gives birth to the child, she will become a Saint, like Mary. She is a very religious girl and convinced this is true.

I am not so sure. In fact, I think maybe her bed partner talked her into the whole thing. Please answer in the paper because I can't risk getting any letters from Ann Landers at home. Thank you. -- Troubled Widow

Dear T.W.: I checked with a professor at one of the leading Catholic universities in the U.S., and this is what he said:

"Because they had no Ann Landers in those days, people in the Gospels occasionally had to rely on angels for the resolution of family problems.

"Mary became pregnant when she was engaged. An angel advised her to marry Joseph, her fiance, bear the child, and be good to both.

"Joseph was disturbed when Mary told him she was pregnant. But an angel advised him to marry her anyway, to cherish mother and child, and to be more patient about trying to figure out what God had in mind.

"Neither Mary nor Joseph would have been called Saint if they had been bed partners before their marriage.

"Widow's daughter is not likely to get any messages from angels. The message she SHOULD get is that her forthcoming child, like any other (including Jesus), needs a home with a father and mother who have pledged their lives to each other.

"If she is not saintly enough to be the mother of her expected child, there are plenty of other women who would be very happy to take the baby. Let us hope she gives proper consideration to the welfare of her unborn child." -- No Signature

Indian matmen hand SHS first loss

By DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

"I told those fellas (Kurt Davidson, Mark Collier and Doug Goodson) that their matches were crucial," explained Jackson wrestling coach Paul Webber. "A single mistake by any of them could have cost us the match and I told them so."

All three wrestlers contributed six points to the Jackson team total, two of them on pins, and the undefeated Indians beat the undefeated Bulldogs 36-27. Sikeston finishes the regular season with an 8-1 record. Jackson has three dual matches left.

"I certainly didn't feel we wrestled up to our capabilities," said a disappointed SHS coach Mark Stevener after the meeting of the two Semo powers.

"But, I think we wrestled them hard and gave them a good match."

Jackson won the first two weight classes and led 9-0. But, veterans Tony DeLaRosa and Harold Myrick at 119 and 126 came right back to tie the score. DeLaRosa, remained undefeated by pinning his opponent with :07 of the first period left. Myrick decisioned Russell Jackman 9-6.

The senior duo of DeLaRosa and Myrick have won 33 times in 34 trips to the mat.

Kevin Nowell brought the enthusiastic crowd to its feet with a big pin over Joe Reiminger, putting the Bulldogs ahead 15-9. But two damaging pins followed.

Both Tom Medelberg and Mark Dewitt were pinned right at the buzzer ending the second period of their matches. Neither call was very popular with the heavily partisan crowd of boosters, but both stood and Jackson was ahead 21-15.

A pin at 145 by Sikeston's Gaylon Couch tied the score again. Couch's bout with Rich Weith was probably the best of the night, from the Sikeston standpoint at least. Sikeston's senior grappler went into the meeting with the knowledge that his team needed a pin and his opponent was a formidable one. In an emotional match, after nearly pinning his man on two occasions, Couch's determination finally paid off and the score was tied at 21-all.

Linzie Lambert won by forfeit when his opponent couldn't make weight. But Lambert went ahead and pinned his man in an exhibition match for good measure. Sikeston led 27-21.

But, an injury to Mark Silverthorn's arm forced him to forfeit to Kurt Davidson and the Dogs were even for the last time at 27-27. An impressive and undefeated sophomore named Mark Collier pinned Sikeston's Robert Grant at 185 and Doug Goodson pinned Russell Bean in the heavyweight division as Jackson's dual meet record jumped to 8-0.

"I'm very happy with the win," said Webber after the victory. "It was an exciting match for the spectators and there were some good individual matches."

In addition to Jackson's three remaining duals, both squads will be involved in a conference match at Farmington Saturday and the District match a week later.

Puxico makes things a -bit closer for Richland

BLOOMFIELD-- What a difference one week and one player can make.

The Richland Rebels, seeded first in the Stoddard County Tournament, clashed with the Puxico Indians in the semifinals Wednesday night at Bloomfield. The meeting came exactly one week after the Rebels had thrashed Puxico 105-53 in a regular season contest.

This time, though, it was a different story. Richland was playing without star Sylvester Patterson, out with a sprained ankle. The scrappy Puxico bunch, out to make amends for their embarrassing loss a week earlier, gave the Rebels all they could handle before bowing 69-61. The win allowed Richland to advance into the finals of the tournament Saturday night against the winner of tonight's Advance-Woodland game at 8:30.

The Rebels offense sputtered and stalled in the first half before waking up in the second half. Richland held a 29-28 halftime lead before they took charge in the third period, moving to a seven-point margin. Puxico fought hard and trimmed the lead to as few as three several times in the fourth quarter, but could never get closer.

Four Richland players scored in double figures, with Sullivan Clark leading the way with 19 points. Glen Cole followed with 16, Alan Hicks had 15 and Phil Ledbetter added 11. Morgan Sifford topped the Indians with 22, while Randy Campbell added 14, Robbie Cookson scored 13 and Larry Payton threw in 10.

Jeff Smith poured in 22 and Marty Sifford contributed 20 more for Puxico as the top seeded Indians moved past Bloomfield into the junior varsity finals. Gary Sharp led Bloomfield with 14.

Bell City meets Advance in a junior varsity bracket semifinal tilt at 7:00 before Advance and Woodland meet in the A team semifinal at 8:30.

Missouri takes charge in Big 8 race

Big Tiger second half clips Cats

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Maybe...just maybe...the Big Eight Conference basketball race is already over.

Defending champion Missouri may have seen to that Wednesday night.

The Tigers, who seem to enjoy adversity, overcame an 11-point deficit to defeat Kansas State, 66-60, and take sole possesion of the lead with five victories and one loss.

K-State dropped to 4-2, along with Oklahoma, which downed Iowa State Wednesday night, 62-52. Kansas lost to Nebraska, 60-57, to fall to 3-3 along with the Cornhuskers. And in a battle of conference also-rans, Oklahoma State downed Colorado, 78-68.

Missouri has one game remaining with Kansas and Kansas State...both at Missouri. Oklahoma, which fell earlier to Missouri at Columbia, hosts the Tigers next month. Missouri appears to be in a commanding position.

"That was a great win," said Tiger Coach Norm Stewart. To come back from that kind of performance can do a lot for a team."

The first half was all K-State and Curtis Redding. Redding, the Wildcats' 6-5 freshman forward, poured in 19 points before intermission and helped staked the 'Cats to a 38-27 advantage.

"Redding had hurt is in the first half," admitted Stewart. "We pleaded with someone to guard him at half time."

To the rescue came Kim Anderson, the Tigers' 6-8 senior center.

Stymied in the first half with just two points, Anderson got 15 in the second and helped hold Redding to just three.

Missouri put together a string of six straight points early in the second half to slice to deficit to seven. Then a streak of 10 staight with 10½ minutes remaining put the Tigers into the lead, 53-52.

"The effort was great, it was a great effort," said Stewart. "I don't believe I've ever had a team play harder than that. I'm just happy to win."

Anderson dished out praise for Redding.

"He's a great young ball player," he said. "I just tried to play as good a defense as I could. You can't take anything away from him. He'll be a great player. The thing we had to do with him was deny him the ball. I had a lot of help inside."

Anderson's 17 points led the Tigers, while Jim Kennedy and Scott Sims each picked up 14. Evans got 17 for the Jayhawks to go with Redding's 22.

Popular Palmer to step up play on PGA tour

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The legend lives on.

He has not won in years. Last season was the worst of his career. But Arnold Palmer still exerts his magic, ummatched influence at the gate.

Many of the younger players on the pro golf tour no longer hold him in awe. But the tournament sponsors do. He is the one man who can make or break a tournament.

Last week, as the partner of former President Gerald Ford, he played before what may have been the largest gallery golf ever has seen. It was a wildly enthusiastic, shouting, camera-clicking, stampeding horde. And Palmer loved every minute of it. It was home country to the man who is credited with building to modern game to its present popularity, the pants-hitching Pied Piper to the legions of his still-loyal followers.

"It was so much fun I just decided to keep on playing for a while," Palmer said before teeing off today in the first round of the $180,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

His presence, unusual for this tournament, brought the event its biggest gallery ever in Wednesday's Pro-Am. Hour-long traffic jams built up on the entrances to the Torrey Pines Golf Club. And they all were looking for Palmer.

He has not won in this country in four years. Last season, he won money in only 13 of 19 events. His winnings were only $17,000 — by far the worst of his career. Many thought he might not play again — or would play a greatly restricted schedule.

Not so.

He is scheduled for four consecutive events.

"Then we'll see," he said. "A lot will depend on how I'm playing."

And although he missed the cut last week, Palmer feels he still is very competitive, still capable of the victory that has eluded him so long.

"Golf is my life," said the 47-year-old Palmer, who has won 61 tour titles and a financial fortune. "I play because I want to, because I like to. I'll play as long as I think I can win."

While he did not rank among the favorites for the $36,000 first prize in this 72-hole test, he held the role of sentimental choice among the field of 156 and was certain to draw the tournament's biggest crowds.

J.C. Snead, winner of the last two San Diego tournaments, was favored to win for the third straight year.

His chief opposition included Masters champion Ray Floyd, Hubert Green, Dave Hill and veterans Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Miller Barber, along with the leaders in last week's Bing Crosby, winner Tom Watson and runner-up Tony Jacklin.

Will Grimsley's Sports World

Every golfer who ever threw his soul into a round-house swing and watched the ball soar toward some God-forsaken jungle should have a vested interest in a meeting of the game's rulesmakers in Atlanta this weekend.

It concerns the legality of science's latest antidote to stomach ulcers and frayed tempers — a golf ball that straightens out its trajectory in flight.

It is a sort of non-hook, nonslice ball, but that, according to its inventors, is overstating the case.

The ball is the creation of two Pacific Coast scientists — Dr. Fred Holmstrom, professor of physics at San Jose State, Calif., and Daniel Nepela, an advisory chemist with IBM — who have been working on the project for 10 years.

By applying the theory of aerodynamics to the traditional dimples on the surface of the ball, they have come up with a pellet that meets all specifications of the U.S. Golf Association in weight (1.62 ounces), size (minimum of 1.68 inches in diameter) and initial velocity.

The only difference lies in its dimple structure — some of the dimples deeper than others — "to minimize the deviation of the ball from the intended path caused by hooking or slicing."

In effect, it corrects its flight in mid-air. It does so legally — no mirrors, no hidden radar, no gimmickry.

Their big problem has been to have the project taken seriously. Pundits are inclined to call it the "happy non-hooker."

That is what seems to worry the USGA brass which has come up with an addition to Rule 2-3 specifying that the ball must be "spherical in shape ... have equal aerodynamic properties and equal moments of inertia about any axis through its center."

The California inventors, who already have patented the new ball' tested it and started manufacturing it under the name of Polara Enterprises, regard this as a move to outlaw their brainchild.

They are flying to Atlanta with their lawyers to fight the "Battle of the Duffers" before the Executive Committee of the U.S. Golf Association, holding its annual convention there.

The argument of attorney William Coblentz, representing the inventors, is that all balls presently approved have varying dimples and as a result differences in aerodynamic properties.

The suggested rule change would "raise questions ... as to its basic unfairness for new and innovative changes," he insists.

Frank Thomas, technical director of the USGA, argues that the new concept "might reduce the skill required to play and therefore be detrimental to the game."

The inventors deny this.

"Our purpose is to keep the game moving and make it more enjoyable for everybody by reducing the time in the rough," Dr. Holstrom says. He added that the ball had been tested by well-known professionals who acclaimed it as being "straighter and truer."

Nepela insists that "although our ball may be in bounds more often than other balls, golfing skill is still needed to play the game."

Indian matmen hand SHS first loss

By DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

"I told those fellas (Kurt Davidson, Mark Collier and Doug Goodson) that their matches were crucial," explained Jackson wrestling coach Paul Webber. "A single mistake by any of them could have cost us the match and I told them so."

All three wrestlers contributed six points to the Jackson team total, two of them on pins, and the undefeated Indians beat the undefeated Bulldogs 36-27. Sikeston finishes the regular season with an 8-1 record. Jackson has three dual matches left.

"I certainly didn't feel we wrestled up to our capabilities," said a disappointed SHS coach Mark Stevener after the meeting of the two Semo powers.

Jackson won the first two weight classes and led 9-0. But, veterans Tony DeLaRosa and Harold Myrick at 119 and 126 came right back to tie the score. DeLaRosa, remained undefeated by pinning his opponent with :07 of the first period left. Myrick decisioned Russell Jackman 9-6.

The senior duo of DeLaRosa and Myrick have won 33 times in 34 trips to the mat.

Kevin Nowell brought the enthusiastic crowd to its feet with a big pin over Joe Reiminger, putting the Bulldogs ahead 15-9. But two damaging pins followed.

Both Tom Medelberg and Mark Dewitt were pinned right at the buzzer ending the second period of their matches. Neither call was very popular with the heavily partisan crowd of boosters, but both stood and Jackson was ahead 21-15.

A pin at 145 by Sikeston's Gaylon Couch tied the score again. Couch's bout with Rich Weith was probably the best of the night, from the Sikeston standpoint at least. Sikeston's senior grappler went into the meeting with the knowledge that his team needed a pin and his opponent was a formidable one. In an emotional match, after nearly pinning his man on two occasions, Couch's determination finally paid off and the score was tied at 21-all.

Linzie Lambert won by forfeit when his opponent couldn't make weight. But Lambert went ahead and pinned his man in an exhibition match for good measure. Sikeston led 27-21.

But, an injury to Mark Silverthorn's arm forced him to forfeit to Kurt Davidson and the Dogs were even for the last time at 27-27. An impressive and undefeated sophomore named Mark Collier pinned Sikeston's Robert Grant at 185 and Doug Goodson pinned Russell Bean in the heavyweight division as Jackson's dual meet record jumped to 8-0.

"I'm very happy with the win," said Webber after the victory. "It was an exciting match for the spectators and there were some good individual matches."

In addition to Jackson's three remaining duals, both squads will be involved in a conference match at Farmington Saturday and the District match a week later.

BLOOMFIELD-- What a difference one week and one player can make.

The Richland Rebels, seeded first in the Stoddard County Tournament, clashed with the Puxico Indians in the semifinals Wednesday night at Bloomfield. The meeting came exactly one week after the Rebels had thrashed Puxico 105-53 in a regular season contest.

This time, though, it was a different story. Richland was playing without star Sylvester Patterson, out with a sprained ankle. The scrappy Puxico bunch, out to make amends for their embarrassing loss a week earlier, gave the Rebels all they could handle before bowing 69-61. The win allowed Richland to advance into the finals of the tournament Saturday night against the winner of tonight's Advance-Woodland game at 8:30.

The Rebels offense sputtered and stalled in the first half before waking up in the second half. Richland held a 29-28 halftime lead before they took charge in the third period, moving to a seven-point margin. Puxico fought hard and trimmed the lead to as few as three several times in the fourth quarter, but could never get closer.

Four Richland players scored in double figures, with Sullivan Clark leading the way with 19 points. Glen Cole followed with 16, Alan Hicks had 15 and Phil Ledbetter added 11. Morgan Sifford topped the Indians with 22, while Randy Campbell added 14, Robbie Cookson scored 13 and Larry Payton threw in 10.

Jeff Smith poured in 22 and Marty Sifford contributed 20 more for Puxico as the top seeded Indians moved past Bloomfield into the junior varsity finals. Gary Sharp led Bloomfield with 14.

Bell City meets Advance in a junior varsity bracket semifinal tilt at 7:00 before Advance and Woodland meet in the A team semifinal at 8:30.

Missouri takes charge in Big 8 race

Big Tiger second half clips Cats

Defending champion Missouri may have seen to that Wednesday night.

The Tigers, who seem to enjoy adversity, overcame an 11-point deficit to defeat Kansas State, 66-60, and take sole possesion of the lead with five victories and one loss.

K-State dropped to 4-2, along with Oklahoma, which downed Iowa State Wednesday night, 62-52. Kansas lost to Nebraska, 60-57, to fall to 3-3 along with the Cornhuskers. And in a battle of conference also-rans, Oklahoma State downed Colorado, 78-68.

Missouri has one game remaining with Kansas and Kansas State...both at Missouri. Oklahoma, which fell earlier to Missouri at Columbia, hosts the Tigers next month. Missouri appears to be in a commanding position.

"That was a great win," said Tiger Coach Norm Stewart. To come back from that kind of performance can do a lot for a team."

The first half was all K-State and Curtis Redding. Redding, the Wildcats' 6-5 freshman forward, poured in 19 points before intermission and helped staked the 'Cats to a 38-27 advantage.

"Redding had hurt is in the first half," admitted Stewart. "We pleaded with someone to guard him at half time."

To the rescue came Kim Anderson, the Tigers' 6-8 senior center.

Stymied in the first half with just two points, Anderson got 15 in the second and helped hold Redding to just three.

Missouri put together a string of six straight points early in the second half to slice to deficit to seven. Then a streak of 10 staight with 10½ minutes remaining put the Tigers into the lead, 53-52.

"The effort was great, it was a great effort," said Stewart. "I don't believe I've ever had a team play harder than that. I'm just happy to win."

Anderson dished out praise for Redding.

"He's a great young ball player," he said. "I just tried to play as good a defense as I could. You can't take anything away from him. He'll be a great player. The thing we had to do with him was deny him the ball. I had a lot of help inside."

Anderson's 17 points led the Tigers, while Jim Kennedy and Scott Sims each picked up 14. Evans got 17 for the Jayhawks to go with Redding's 22.

Favorites win in Madrid tourney

LILBOURN — Both top-seeded teams won their games Wednesday night as the junior varsity Portageville Bulldogs and varsity Matthews Pirates advanced to the New Madrid County Tournament finals. Portageville thumped Parma 54-40 and Matthews won a shootout with Lilbourn 96-93.

In the B game, Portageville led all the way while picking up the 14-point win. Wright led the winners with 16 points. Thatch scored 21 for the losing side.

A big third period and balanced scoring paid off for Matthews i nthe varsity tilt.

Lilbourn had built up a 50-43 halftime edge when the Buc offense really began to tick. Matthews burned the nets for 31 big points and a 74-68 lead going into the last eight minutes. They held off the Panthers, led by Willie Johnson and Glynn Blair, the rest of the way.

Blair and Johnson accounted for 69 of Lilbourn's points. Blair scored 40 of them, reaching the 40 mark for the third time this month.

Gerald Davis scored 24 points for the winners.

Time Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

While several area basketball coaches are basking in glory this season with super teams, there are several others who probably will not get the credit they deserve. This column is devoted to those who might otherwise be overlooked, even by their peers.

1. Carl Ritter, Bell City--Coach Ritter has instilled a winning attitude into what had always before been a losing basketball program. Bell City has always had the talent there, as their prolific junior high and junior varsity records would indicate. But somehow Cub players learned how to lose by the time they made it to the varsity. Of course, five returning starters from last year's team help a lot. But this year's Bell City team has two ingredients which Cub squads in recent years have lacked--discipline and pride.

2. Carroll Cookson, Advance--Cookson probably makes a little talent go farther than any coach in Missouri. His record speaks for itself. And while there have been occasional superstars at Advance to enhance the Hornet basketball dynasty, it must be said that Carroll Cookson builds his basketball players, for the most part, taking boys who are only mediocre athletic specimens and creating the desire within them to work hard to become good basketball players. Year in and year out, it is the same story. This year's Hornet team has only one athlete who is exceptionally gifted and Advance probably won't go to the state tournament finals at Columbia (although there probably isn't a 1-A team in the state who can beat them except Richland or Matthews). It is a tribute to Cookson that they have come as far as they have.

3. Gary Russo, Delta C-7--Here is a first-year Southeast Missouri coach, an import from New York State, who inherited a team that starts a junior, two sophomores and a freshman. The fact that the Chargers have lost only twice and will contend for the regional title says something for the man sitting at the end of the bench, who has the unenviable task of trying to teach fundamentals to the young players while at the same time producing a winning basketball team. Russo will no doubt be heard from again in the near future--if not this year.

4. Norm VanAmburg, Portageville--VanAmburg has had to fight a war against a losing attitude and against a flurry of injuries. He won both battles. Portageville seems to have the best bet of challenging Senath-Hornersville for a 2-A State Tournament spot. But whether they make it or not, credit VanAmburg with a job well done this year.

We apologize if we've overlooked anyone, which we probably have. Maybe some of the other coaches and readers have some ideas about other coaches who deserve a special pat on the back. Mail to: Forum, 205 S. New Madrid St., Sikeston, Mo. 63801.

Frosh hoping for rematch with Cape in tourney finals

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Sikeston's freshman basketballers are looking toward a possible final shot at powerful Cape Central in the finals of this week's freshman tournament at Central Junior High School. The Bulldogs took the first step toward such a rematch as they stopped Charleston 53-43 Wednesday night in the opening round.

"They weren't even looking at Charleston," said freshman coach Ford Morgan, whose team obviously had most of their thoughts centered on a possible Saturday meeting with the Bengals, the only team to beat SJHS this year. Central is seeded first in the tournament, with Sikeston seeded second.

Sikeston, which had beaten the Bluejay ninth graders 50-28 last Saturday at the Fieldhouse, probably looked past the Charleston team this time. They fell behind 27-23 at the half, but Coach Morgan employed a half court zone trap in the third quarter to get his team moving. The Bulldogs outscored the Jays 18-4 in the quarter to move ahead by their final ten point margin.

Mike Sales was again the big gun for Sikeston, finding the range for 26 points. Andy Rodgers also was in double digits with 12, Winston scored 15 for Charleston.

Sikeston meets Meridian of Mounds, Ill. tonight in the semifinals at 7:30.

FAR-OFF PUPILS

MILLER, Mo. (AP) — Mickey Owen apparently gained worldwide fame after his 1941 error that led to a Yankee World Series victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. This summer his baseball school in Miller, Mo., included pupils from the Philippines, the Canal Zone and Saudi Arabia.

Mitch Hopton, 14, of Rizal, the Philippines, Gary Knurbein, 17, of Najman, Saudi Arabia, and Robert O'Connor, 11, from Balboa Heights, Panama were at the school for boys 8 to 19. Owen is no longer active in the school but pays frequent visits. His regular job is sheriff of Green County in Springfield, Mo.

PHILADELPHIA — Ray Moore of South Africa upset second-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden 7-6, 6-4 and Bill Scanlon of Dallas ousted No. 3 seed Ilie Nastase of Romania 2-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the second round of the $200,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championship.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Martina Navratilova of the United States scored a 6-2, 6-1 over Regina Marsikova of Czechoslavakia in the opening round of a $100,000 Women's Professional tennis tournament.

SKIING

BOWLING

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. — Dale Glenn of Glendale, Calif., rolled a perfect 300 game to grab the early first round lead in the $90,000 open professional bowling tournament. Teata Semiz of River Edge, N.J., then earned the lead after two rounds.

FIGURE SKATING

HELSINKI — Vladimir Kovalev of the Soviet Union clung to a thin lead over East German Jan Hoffmann after two programs of the three that will determine the men's European singles ice skating championship. Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitchev, leding a Soviet sweep, captured the pairs competition.

GENERAL

Junior High tourney opens at Benton

BENTON — Delta and Oran claimed victories in the eighth grade bracket and East Prairie picked up a win in the seventh grade division Wednesday evening as the Scott-Mississippi Conference Junior High Tournament got underway at Kelly High School.

Fourth-seeded Delta downed East Prairie 43-30 and second-seeded Oran ripped Chaffee 69-22 in eighth grade play. Second-seeded East Prairie was a 55-28 victory over Oran in the seventh-grade competition.

Chaffee and Delta square off at 5:30 tonight in the seventh grade tourney, with Illmo-Scott City and Kelly following at 7:00. The Rams and Hawks meet again at 8:30 in an eighth grade game.

HONOR FOR HOT DOGS

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The first hot dogs and baseball scorecards have made their way into the Hall of Fame and Museum here.

They are symbolized by a miniature trophy, long-treasured by the Harry M. Stevens catering family. It was presented to the Hall by Homer Rose, a Stevens' executive vice president whose grandfather saw a game in Columbus, Ohio, in the 1880s. When the English immigrant couldn't tell the players apart he devised the first score card.

Later, Homer Rose devised a tiny vendor of hot dogs. The frankfurter, however, got its start when a member of the Stevens family imported German sausages and soon ball park vendors were yelling "get 'em while they're hot."

Eight players who began the 1976 baseball season with the Oakland A's are with other major league teams. All went through the free agent draft.

Brooks Robinson, a recent golfing visitor to Puerto Rico, and his wife, Connie, made a "side trip" to St. Thomas by air boat for a day of shopping.

Favorites win in Madrid tourney

LILBOURN — Both top-seeded teams won their games Wednesday night as the junior varsity Portageville Bulldogs and varsity Matthews Pirates advanced to the New Madrid County Tournament finals. Portageville thumped Parma 54-40 and Matthews won a shootout with Lilbourn 96-93.

Lilbourn had built up a 50-43 halftime edge when the Buc offense really began to tick. Matthews burned the nets for 31 big points and a 74-68 lead going into the last eight minutes. They held off the Panthers, led by Willie Johnson and Glynn Blair, the rest of the way.

Blair and Johnson accounted for 69 of Lilbourn's points. Blair scored 40 of them, reaching the 40 mark for the third time this month.

Gerald Davis scored 24 points for the winners.

Time Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

While several area basketball coaches are basking in glory this season with super teams, there are several others who probably will not get the credit they deserve. This column is devoted to those who might otherwise be overlooked, even by their peers.

1. Carl Ritter, Bell City--Coach Ritter has instilled a winning attitude into what had always before been a losing basketball program. Bell City has always had the talent there, as their prolific junior high and junior varsity records would indicate. But somehow Cub players learned how to lose by the time they made it to the varsity. Of course, five returning starters from last year's team help a lot. But this year's Bell City team has two ingredients which Cub squads in recent years have lacked--discipline and pride.

2. Carroll Cookson, Advance--Cookson probably makes a little talent go farther than any coach in Missouri. His record speaks for itself. And while there have been occasional superstars at Advance to enhance the Hornet basketball dynasty, it must be said that Carroll Cookson builds his basketball players, for the most part, taking boys who are only mediocre athletic specimens and creating the desire within them to work hard to become good basketball players. Year in and year out, it is the same story. This year's Hornet team has only one athlete who is exceptionally gifted and Advance probably won't go to the state tournament finals at Columbia (although there probably isn't a 1-A team in the state who can beat them except Richland or Matthews). It is a tribute to Cookson that they have come as far as they have.

3. Gary Russo, Delta C-7--Here is a first-year Southeast Missouri coach, an import from New York State, who inherited a team that starts a junior, two sophomores and a freshman. The fact that the Chargers have lost only twice and will contend for the regional title says something for the man sitting at the end of the bench, who has the unenviable task of trying to teach fundamentals to the young players while at the same time producing a winning basketball team. Russo will no doubt be heard from again in the near future--if not this year.

4. Norm VanAmburg, Portageville--VanAmburg has had to fight a war against a losing attitude and against a flurry of injuries. He won both battles. Portageville seems to have the best bet of challenging Senath-Hornersville for a 2-A State Tournament spot. But whether they make it or not, credit VanAmburg with a job well done this year.

We apologize if we've overlooked anyone, which we probably have. Maybe some of the other coaches and readers have some ideas about other coaches who deserve a special pat on the back. Mail to: Forum, 205 S. New Madrid St., Sikeston, Mo. 63801.

Frosh hoping for rematch with Cape in tourney finals

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Sikeston's freshman basketballers are looking toward a possible final shot at powerful Cape Central in the finals of this week's freshman tournament at Central Junior High School. The Bulldogs took the first step toward such a rematch as they stopped Charleston 53-43 Wednesday night in the opening round.

"They weren't even looking at Charleston," said freshman coach Ford Morgan, whose team obviously had most of their thoughts centered on a possible Saturday meeting with the Bengals, the only team to beat SJHS this year. Central is seeded first in the tournament, with Sikeston seeded second.

Sikeston, which had beaten the Bluejay ninth graders 50-28 last Saturday at the Fieldhouse, probably looked past the Charleston team this time. They fell behind 27-23 at the half, but Coach Morgan employed a half court zone trap in the third quarter to get his team moving. The Bulldogs outscored the Jays 18-4 in the quarter to move ahead by their final ten point margin.

Mike Sales was again the big gun for Sikeston, finding the range for 26 points. Andy Rodgers also was in double digits with 12, Winston scored 15 for Charleston.

Sikeston meets Meridian of Mounds, Ill. tonight in the semifinals at 7:30.

SIKESTON (53)
Sales 26, Longstreet 4, Eckles 2, Rodgers 12, Harris 9. Totals: FG-24; FT-5; PF-18.

CHARLESTON (43)
Winston 15, Jamieson 3, Townsend 4, Campbell 10, French 7, Wilkins 2, McCain 2. Totals: FG-16; FT-11; PF-8.

Score by Quarters:

Sikeston	12 11 18 12--53
Charleston	13 14 4 12--43

Transferring PSC staff will be a substantial regulatory change

JEFFERSON CITY — Legislation to transfer the Missouri Public Service Commission staff to the Office of the Public Counsel would substantially change the role of the commission in determining utility rates, proponents and opponents both agree.

The bill's author, St. Louis Democratic Rep. Edward Sweeney, says the legislation would create a more adversary proceeding for the commission and while it may not bring down utility rates, it would establish a fairer procedure for deciding what those rates will be.

The commission's staff now consists of experst in utility regulation such as accountants, engineers and economists, all of whom study rate requests and make their recommendations to the commission.

Barvick says the commission staff presently takes an objective view of its duties and is not as aggressive at presenting the public's case as his office would be. He says that under his office the staff would challenge utilities more than the current staff does by clearly advocating consumer interests.

If the staff is transferred to the public counsel, the rate hearing would more closely resemble a court. Two adversaries — the utility and the public counsel — would present their cases to the commission. Since the commission would no longer have a staff to supply information and recommendations, it would have to act like a judge.

Leland Curtis, director of the commission staff, says the commission would be "left out in the cold" if the staff is transferred because the commission will no longer have its own source of information.

Utilities and other opponents of the transfer agree that if persons without expertise continue to comprise the commission. it will need its own facts to even judge a rate request. Changing the role of the commission to that of a judge would not be in the public interest, they say.

Dale Sporleder, a representative of two regulated groups, cautioned the House Consumer Protection Committee at its recent hearing on the bill, that a transfer of the staff represents "a drastic change in the philosophy" of the role of the commission from representing the overall public interest to judging two adversaries.

Sporleder maintains that if the commissioners are not specialists, they will need their own staff to judge rate cases if their present staff is transferred.

Edward Skinner of Southwestern Bell also opposed the transfer of the staff. He told the committee that the commission already plays an advocacy role on behalf of consumers.

Since the transfer is so complex, no one knows how many persons will be transferred to the public counsel. Stephen Jones, Public Service Commissioner, calls the transfer a "nightmare of complexity" because no one knows whether the public counsel will also be responsible for the non-investigatory functions of the present staff, or if the commission would retain some members for those responsibilities.

Teasdale fills public safety department post

Gov. Joseph Teasdale filled another department directorship last week with the selection of Jackson County Sheriff Ken Carnes to head the Department of Public Safety.

Carnes said one of his first priorities would be to select a new chief of the Missouri Highway Patrol to replace the retiring Col. Sam Smith. Carnes said he expected to choose Smith's replacement from within the patrol.

Teasdale used that occasion to announce that Joe Bednar, one of Teasdale's closest campaign aides in his two gubernatorial campaigns, will serve as his top executive assistant.

Teasdale has already announced that Brendan Ryan will serve in Teasdale's office as assistant for legislative affairs and that Cliff Faddis will serve as Teasdale's assistant for governmental affairs.

KFVS-TV CP telethon date is set

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The seventh annual KFVS-TV celebrity telethon for cerebral palsy will be held Feb. 19 and 20, announced Lloyd Gene Estes, president of United Cerebral Palsy of Cape Girardeau, the host organization.

Each year, United Cerebral Palsy chapters throughout Southeast Missouri, western Kentucky and southern Illinois join forces with the Cape Girardeau television station to present the telethon. Proceeds go to fund UCP programs throughout the area.

The telethon will be broadcast live, beginning at 10:30 p.m. Feb. 19 and continuing through 5:30 p.m. Feb. 20.

Nightclub and recording star Johnny Tillotson will serve as master of ceremonies again this year. The names of other stars who will participate will be announced soon.

Farm Roundup

Value of farm land average a 33 percent increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of farm land in the five major Corn Belt states rose an average of 33 per cent last year, including a record-tying 41 per cent jump in Illinois, according to the Agriculture Department.

Officials said that the average value increase for land in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri was the most since USDA began keeping such records in 1912.

The report, issued Monday by the department's Economic Research Service, said Illinois' 41 per cent gain raised the value of its farm land to an average of $1,497 an acre last Nov. 1, compared with $1,184 a year earlier.

It said the gain in Illinois farm land value — measured by surveys of sales prices and other information — matched a record 41 per cent jump set in 1920 for South Carolina land.

The other states in the Corn Belt group and their Nov. 1 average land value and percentage increase from a year earlier were: Ohio $1,039 up 32 per cent, Indiana $1,154 up 30, Iowa $1,222 up 33, and Missouri $472 up 20.

Nationally, the Nov. 1, 1976, figures showed that farm land rose 17 per cent in value in the year, compared with gains of 12 per cent in 1975 and a record of 21 per cent in 1974.

Prior to the big take-off in land prices five or six years ago, they had been increasing around 5 or 6 per cent annually.

As of last Nov. 1, the report said, the average value of farm land nationally was $445 an acre, up from $380 a year earlier and from $339 on Nov. 1, 1974. But within the averages is a wide variation in land costs, from a U.S. low of $76 an acre in New Mexico to a high of $2,852 in New Jersey, the report said.

Aside from four of the five Corn Belt states, there were seven others in which average land prices exceeded $1,000 an acre last fall.

Those seven are in the Northeast "where high population density results in strong competing demands for existing farm land for agricultural, residential, commercial, industrial, recreational and wildlife habitat uses," the report said.

Looking at the five Corn Belt states as a group, officials said that "farm enlargement was most important" in assessing why prices spiraled so sharply. But scarcity of land for sale, crop and livestock prices, investment in land as a hedge against inflation, and availability of credit were also factors.

The report said that land values nationally might increase by another five per cent or more this year but gave no predictions of increases by specific states.

By region and state, the report's list of average farm land values as of last Nov. 1 and the percentage increase from a year earlier included:

Lakes States — Michigan $672 an acre, up 19 per cent; Wisconsin $568 and 21; and Minnesota $627 and 24.

Northern Plains — North Dakota $260 and 14, South Dakota $202 and 17, Nebraska $408 and 25, and Kansas $384 and 15.

Appalachian — Virginia $664 and 3; West Virginia $411 and 17; North Carolina $687 and 2; Kentucky $547 and 15; and Tennessee $596 and 11.

Southeast — South Carolina $616 and 5; Georgia $517 and 2; Florida $708 and 4; and Alabama $440 and 6.

Delta — Mississippi $384 and no increase; Arkansas $463 and 17; and Louisiana $601 and 10.

Southern Plains — Oklahoma $370 and 10; and Texas $283 and 11.

Mountain — Montana $142 and 14; Idaho $435 and 14; Wyoming $95 and 12; Colorado $246 and 17; New Mexico $76 and 8.

Arizona $121 and 3; Utah $182 and 9; and Nevada 106 and no increase.

Pacific — Washington $409 and 15; Oregon $274 and 7; and California $692 and 3.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the possibility of a larger cotton crop this year, the export market continues to look bright and will help absorb the potentially bigger supply, according to the Agriculture Department.

Growers have indicated they will boost cotton plantings 10 per cent this spring to 12.8 million acres. With normal yields, the 1977 harvest could be "sharply above" the 1976 production of 10.6 million bales, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

While domestic use of cotton by textile mills has been reduced by cheaper synthetic fibers, foreign demand for U.S. cotton has rebounded and probably will require 4.6 million bales, up from 3.3 million last season, the board said.

Looking to 1977-78, exports "may fare even better," officials said.

But they added that any increase in domestic mill use "is problematical at this time," although improvements in the economy and growing consumer confidance could have an impact.

The cotton reserve to be left over when the new marketing year begins next Aug. 1 is forecast at about three million bales, down from 3.7 million last summer and from 5.7 million bales on Aug. 1, 1975, officials said.

RENT CONTROL SPREADING

Among those who think there might be stepped-up action for rent control is John Williamson, general counsel for the National Apartment Association, Washington, D.C.

"You have to increase rents. There are going to be apartment shortages, tenants are more militant," said Williamson, who predicted "more action for rent control might assert itself" soon.

SeMo State president to speak to Dexter chamber

DEXTER — Dr. Robert Leestamper, president of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, will be the principal speaker at the annual Dexter Chamber of Commerce banquet Monday, at which time Dr. Robert Boon, a Dexter dentist, will be installed as the C of C's new president.

The annual banquet will be held at the Catholic Church Hall.

Boon, who has been serving as first vice president, will succeed I.J. Daniel as head of the Dexter civic organization.

This will be Dr. Leestamper's first speaking engagement in Dexter since assuming the presidency of Southeast Missouri State.

The Man of the Year Award will also be present at the annual meeting and this time will be handled by Bob Robins, himself a former recepient of the honor. The winner will not be revealed until the banquet meeting.

Wilson Jarrell will be master of ceremonies for the annual meeting, and Leestamper will be introduced by Yewell Lawrence, program chairman for the C of C.

Other new officers, who will assume their duties at the meeting, in addition to Boon, will include: Bob Diehl, first vice president; Mrs. Sherlene Arnholdt, second vice president; and Allen Douglass, secretary-treasurer. New directors will include Robins, John William Ringer, Charles Wiggs, Jack Rodgers and Jack Norman.

Special music for the event will be provided by a group of students from Dexter High School, under the direction of Mike Clippard.

The annual dinner meeting will begin at 7 p.m. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce office in the City Administration Building, or may be purchased from members of the board of directors.

Full-time city planner is hired for Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF — Saying rapid urban growth and its resultant legal and developmental entanglements have created a need for a fulltime supervisor to keep an eye on the development of Poplar Bluff, City Manager David Pence announced Tuesday that the city has hired a city planner to do just that.

Poplar Bluff's city planner will head an equally new city bureaucracy, the Department of Planning and Building, beginning Feb. 16.

What will the city planner do? So far, his list of duties include working hand-in-hand with the Planning and Zoning Commission, supervising the city's building inspectors and making sure all building codes are enforced, handling all industrial and recreational land developments and scouting the federal terrain for any dollars that may be awarded a city planning department.

Pence said the city—acting through an interviewing committee—screened 80 applicants for the job. The man they selected is Charles "Pete" Mace, 34, of Memphis.

Currently, Mace is senior planner for the Memphis and Shelby County Planning Commission, making zoning studies and revisions for that joint city-county agency.

Mace, who will make $13,000 a year, was the choice made from four applicants who traveled to Poplar Bluff during the first week of January for interviews.

Mace has worked for the Memphis agency since 1969, serving as senior planner since 1974.

Mace graduated from Memphis State University with a master of arts degree in 1972. He earned his bachelor of science in education degree from Arkansas State University in 1966. He also has attended the University of Delaware and Wesley Junior College in Newark, Del.

"The Planning and Zoning Commission does a tremendous job as individual citizens, but they just don't have time for the legwork, nor the expertise needed," Pence said.

"We've gotten to the point where we need two building inspectors now. Annexations and building growth keep adding on to us. We need a planner," Pence said in explaining the need for a city planner.

The search for a city planner has its roots in a March 16, 1976, meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission when Pence suggested to the commission the need for such a supervisor. The commission agreed unanimously and the search began.

Advertisements were placed in city planning publications and the 80 persons responded, Pence said.

A committee made up of commission members C.W. Knuckles, Dorothy Wright, Harlo Dunn, City Zoning Coordinator Laura Lassen and Pence made the final choice: Mace.

Pence said Mrs. Lassen will retire after Mace has "gotten the feel of the job."

Farm Roundup

Value of farm land average a 33 percent increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of farm land in the five major Corn Belt states rose an average of 33 per cent last year, including a record-tying 41 per cent jump in Illinois, according to the Agriculture Department.

Officials said that the average value increase for land in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri was the most since USDA began keeping such records in 1912.

The report, issued Monday by the department's Economic Research Service, said Illinois' 41 per cent gain raised the value of its farm land to an average of $1,497 an acre last Nov. 1, compared with $1,184 a year earlier.

It said the gain in Illinois farm land value — measured by surveys of sales prices and other information — matched a record 41 per cent jump set in 1920 for South Carolina land.

The other states in the Corn Belt group and their Nov. 1 average land value and percentage increase from a year earlier were: Ohio $1,039 up 32 per cent, Indiana $1,154 up 30, Iowa $1,222 up 33, and Missouri $472 up 20.

Nationally, the Nov. 1, 1976, figures showed that farm land rose 17 per cent in value in the year, compared with gains of 12 per cent in 1975 and a record of 21 per cent in 1974.

Prior to the big take-off in land prices five or six years ago, they had been increasing around 5 or 6 per cent annually.

As of last Nov. 1, the report said, the average value of farm land nationally was $445 an acre, up from $380 a year earlier and from $339 on Nov. 1, 1974. But within the averages is a wide variation in land costs, from a U.S. low of $76 an acre in New Mexico to a high of $2,852 in New Jersey, the report said.

Aside from four of the five Corn Belt states, there were seven others in which average land prices exceeded $1,000 an acre last fall.

Those seven are in the Northeast "where high population density results in strong competing demands for existing farm land for agricultural, residential, commercial, industrial, recreational and wildlife habitat uses," the report said.

Looking at the five Corn Belt states as a group, officials said that "farm enlargement was most important" in assessing why prices spiraled so sharply. But scarcity of land for sale, crop and livestock prices, investment in land as a hedge against inflation, and availability of credit were also factors.

The report said that land values nationally might increase by another five per cent or more this year but gave no predictions of increases by specific states.

By region and state, the report's list of average farm land values as of last Nov. 1 and the percentage increase from a year earlier included:

Lakes States — Michigan $672 an acre, up 19 per cent; Wisconsin $568 and 21; and Minnesota $627 and 24.

Northern Plains — North Dakota $260 and 14, South Dakota $202 and 17, Nebraska $408 and 25, and Kansas $384 and 15.

Appalachian — Virginia $664 and 3; West Virginia $411 and 17; North Carolina $687 and 2; Kentucky $547 and 15; and Tennessee $596 and 11.

Southeast — South Carolina $616 and 5; Georgia $517 and 2; Florida $708 and 4; and Alabama $440 and 6.

Delta — Mississippi $384 and no increase; Arkansas $463 and 17; and Louisiana $601 and 10.

Southern Plains — Oklahoma $370 and 10; and Texas $283 and 11.

Mountain — Montana $142 and 14; Idaho $435 and 14; Wyoming $95 and 12; Colorado $246 and 17; New Mexico $76 and 8.

Arizona $121 and 3; Utah $182 and 9; and Nevada 106 and no increase.

Pacific — Washington $409 and 15; Oregon $274 and 7; and California $692 and 3.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the possibility of a larger cotton crop this year, the export market continues to look bright and will help absorb the potentially bigger supply, according to the Agriculture Department.

Growers have indicated they will boost cotton plantings 10 per cent this spring to 12.8 million acres. With normal yields, the 1977 harvest could be "sharply above" the 1976 production of 10.6 million bales, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

While domestic use of cotton by textile mills has been reduced by cheaper synthetic fibers, foreign demand for U.S. cotton has rebounded and probably will require 4.6 million bales, up from 3.3 million last season, the board said.

Looking to 1977-78, exports "may fare even better," officials said.

But they added that any increase in domestic mill use "is problematical at this time," although improvements in the economy and growing consumer confidance could have an impact.

The cotton reserve to be left over when the new marketing year begins next Aug. 1 is forecast at about three million bales, down from 3.7 million last summer and from 5.7 million bales on Aug. 1, 1975, officials said.

RENT CONTROL SPREADING

Among those who think there might be stepped-up action for rent control is John Williamson, general counsel for the National Apartment Association, Washington, D.C.

"You have to increase rents. There are going to be apartment shortages, tenants are more militant," said Williamson, who predicted "more action for rent control might assert itself" soon.

SeMo State president to speak to Dexter chamber

DEXTER — Dr. Robert Leestamper, president of Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, will be the principal speaker at the annual Dexter Chamber of Commerce banquet Monday, at which time Dr. Robert Boon, a Dexter dentist, will be installed as the C of C's new president.

The annual banquet will be held at the Catholic Church Hall.

Boon, who has been serving as first vice president, will succeed I.J. Daniel as head of the Dexter civic organization.

This will be Dr. Leestamper's first speaking engagement in Dexter since assuming the presidency of Southeast Missouri State.

The Man of the Year Award will also be present at the annual meeting and this time will be handled by Bob Robins, himself a former recepient of the honor. The winner will not be revealed until the banquet meeting.

Wilson Jarrell will be master of ceremonies for the annual meeting, and Leestamper will be introduced by Yewell Lawrence, program chairman for the C of C.

Other new officers, who will assume their duties at the meeting, in addition to Boon, will include: Bob Diehl, first vice president; Mrs. Sherlene Arnholdt, second vice president; and Allen Douglass, secretary-treasurer. New directors will include Robins, John William Ringer, Charles Wiggs, Jack Rodgers and Jack Norman.

Committee asks for 30-day moratorium on weight limits on trucks hauling fuel

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Roads and Highways Committee today asked Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale to investigate the possibility of calling for a 30-day moratorium on weight limits for fuel hauling trucks.

But a State Highway Department representative told the committee at its meeting Wednesday night that the department does not have the authority to rescind truck weight limits under the statutes.

Sen. Norman L. Merrell, D-Monticello, asked the committee to request that Teasdale contact the department about the moratorium and the committee approved a resolution for the request.

Lyle McLaughlin of the highway department reported to the committee that the proposal was a "no win" situation. He said even if Teasdale did make the request the department could not approve it.

Merrell suggested the moratorium so that fuel trucks could carry increased loads of fuel oil, gas and propane to relieve shortages around the state.

If the weight limit was raised, George Burrus of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association said, fuel trucks could deliver an extra 1,000 gallons of fuel per load.

Merrell proposed the moratorium because of the severe cold and fuel shortages as part of his presentation of a bill that would increase truck weights and lengths.

The bill, which passed the Senate two years ago and failed in the House, would allow trucks to carry a maximum of 80,000 pounds and would increase lengths from 60 feet to 65 feet.

Because of the current law, Merrell said, trucks coming into Missouri with full loads must often unload and make an extra trip to complete delivery.

Matt Abboud, representing the Teamsters Union, said his membership opposes the bill which would also increase the maximum weight allowed on the front axle.

Increased weight per axle would result in tire blowouts and reduced turning radius, Abboud said. The teamsters would like to see a limit of 10,000 pounds for the front axle.

More than that, Abboud said, and "you're creating a potential accident with every truck."

The committee voted unanimously to report the bill out of committee favorably.

Senate Municipal Corporation okays 7 per cent pay hike for St. Louis police

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Municipal Corporations committee Wednesday unanimously recommended approval of a seven per cent across the board pay increase for St. Louis policmen.

The measure now goes to the Senate floor for further consideration.

Despite testimony from Patrolman Roy Perkins, vice president of the St. Louis Police Officers Association, that many of the city's patrolmen qualified for food stamps and that the raise was not enough, the committee approved the bill.

City officials have endorsed the bill which is sponsored by Sen. John Scott, D-St. Louis. The pay raise would cost the city more than $3 million.

Col. T.D. McNeal, president of the St. Louis Police Board, said the bill provides for a seven per cent pay boost for all of the department's 2,100 officers and additional pay for higher ranking officers.

In other legislature action Wednesday, a minimum wage bill was unanimously approved by the House Labor Committee. The bill would set a minimum wage of $2 30 an hour for most workers in Missouri and require time-and-a-half pay for more than a 40-hour week.

The Senate gave first round approval to a bill increasing the maximum levy to support Kansas City museums. The measure, sponsored by Sen. Mary Gant, D-Kansas City, would increase from two cents to nine cents the maximum per $100 assessed valuation rate which may be levied to support the museums in the city.

The senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments and Reorganization heard testimony on three resolutions relating to county charters and home rule.

The committee also heard testimony on a proposed resolution for a statewide salary review commission for review of salaries paid to elected and public officials.

Mondale speaks with Pope Paul VI

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI met with Vice President Walter F. Mondale today and told him President Carter's pledge to work for an end to the arms race will be "of immense service to the world."

"We are convinced that everything that wounds, weakens, and dishonors life will destroy peace and degrade humanity, and it is thus with optimism that we note the commitment of your president in favor of the reduction of weapons, particularly nuclear weapons.

"We are sure that this will promote common interests and be on immense service to the world."

The pope spoke in English.

Mondale said the meeting was "reassuring to us" and expressed the "strong necessity for freedom, justice, compassion and peace."

The papal audience concluded Mondale's overnight visit to the Italian capital, and afterward he left for London to meet with British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

The meeting with Mondale was the pope's first with a top-ranking American official in more than 19 months, since he received President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on June 3, 1975.

The vice president met Wednesday with Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti and President Giovanni Leone, and an informed source said 80 per cent of the conversation was devoted to Italy's grave economic situation.

A State Department official traveling with the vice president said the subject of future Communist participation in the Italian government and the effect that might have on Italy's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) came up only indirectly.

A few hours before Mondale and Andreotti met, Italy's three major labor federations reached an agreement with the major employer group that could reduce labor costs and increase productivity.

Dexter man charged with a felony

BLOOMFIELD— A Dexter businessman, Edward Dwain Kirby, has posted bond of $5,000 on felony confidence game charges.

Kirby, formerly associated with SeMo Enterprises here, was charged last week and posted a 10 per cent cash bond.

Law enforcement officials said the charges allege that Kirby fraudulently used lien waivers, and the initial sums allegedly involved in the scheme may total "several thousand dollars," sheriff's officers said.

RAGGEDY ANN

NEW YORK (AP) — "Raggedy Ann & Andy," the first feature-length animated musical comedy produced in the United States, will be released this Easter by Twentieth Century-Fox.

The film is based on the characters created by Indianapolis Star cartoonist John Gruelle. It has a full Broadway musical score and 12 songs written especially for the film.

Real estate people looking for vigorous sales in 1977

NEW YORK (AP) — Real estate people are looking for this year to be the most vigorous ever in sales of single-family dwellings, despite an anticipated rise in the median price of new homes to more than $50,000.

That expectation, from the National Association of Realtors, stands in sharp contrast to some other industrial forecasts that are hedged against the possibilities of rising interest rates and inflation.

The Realtors concede that inflation will be apparent in the housing market, but no more so than in 1976. They forecast an 8 per cent rise for existing homes and a 10 per cent increase for newly built units.

The cost of mortgages, however, is expected to go the other way, falling during the first half of the year to 8.5 per cent before stabilizing and then probably inching higher. Rates last year generally were around 9 per cent.

The biggest spur to sales is expected to come from an even stronger existing home market. Last year close to 3 million such homes changed hands, and the Realtors expect sales this year to total 3.4 million.

The interest of Americans in homes previously occupied soared during the past few years but was almost unnoticed by some economists and others who had their eyes glued to the figures on newly built homes.

A number of factors are behind the interest, including the higher cost of new homes, the greater spaciousness of some existing homes, the desire of some young couples to renovate units in mature neighborhoods.

In addition to higher sales for existing homes, the Realtors expect that about 1.3 million single-family homes will be started in 1977, making it the second-best year ever for this type of construction.

In all, said the Realtors, "American consumers will spend $220 billion to purchase nearly 4.7 million single-family homes, making this the best year ever for the single-family home market."

What astonishes some students of the housing market is that the surge comes in the face of higher prices — prices that some of them had felt would rule out statistics such as those now forecast.

The thrift industry, made up of savings banks and savings and loan associations, had record high deposits in 1976, and is expected to be in a strong position to lend throughout 1977.

Lyle McLaughlin of the highway department reported to the committee that the proposal was a "no win" situation. He said even if Teasdale did make the request the department could not approve it.

Merrell suggested the moratorium so that fuel trucks could carry increased loads of fuel oil, gas and propane to relieve shortages around the state.

If the weight limit was raised, George Burrus of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association said, fuel trucks could deliver an extra 1,000 gallons of fuel per load.

Merrell proposed the moratorium because of the severe cold and fuel shortages as part of his presentation of a bill that would increase truck weights and lengths.

The bill, which passed the Senate two years ago and failed in the House, would allow trucks to carry a maximum of 80,000 pounds and would increase lengths from 60 feet to 65 feet.

Because of the current law, Merrell said, trucks coming into Missouri with full loads must often unload and make an extra trip to complete delivery.

Matt Abboud, representing the Teamsters Union, said his membership opposes the bill which would also increase the maximum weight allowed on the front axle.

Increased weight per axle would result in tire blowouts and reduced turning radius, Abboud said. The teamsters would like to see a limit of 10,000 pounds for the front axle.

More than that, Abboud said, and "you're creating a potential accident with every truck."

The committee voted unanimously to report the bill out of committee favorably.

Senate Municipal Corporation okays 7 per cent pay hike for St. Louis police

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Municipal Corporations committee Wednesday unanimously recommended approval of a seven per cent across the board pay increase for St. Louis policmen.

The measure now goes to the Senate floor for further consideration.

Despite testimony from Patrolman Roy Perkins, vice president of the St. Louis Police Officers Association, that many of the city's patrolmen qualified for food stamps and that the raise was not enough, the committee approved the bill.

City officials have endorsed the bill which is sponsored by Sen. John Scott, D-St. Louis. The pay raise would cost the city more than $3 million.

Col. T.D. McNeal, president of the St. Louis Police Board, said the bill provides for a seven per cent pay boost for all of the department's 2,100 officers and additional pay for higher ranking officers.

In other legislature action Wednesday, a minimum wage bill was unanimously approved by the House Labor Committee. The bill would set a minimum wage of $2 30 an hour for most workers in Missouri and require time-and-a-half pay for more than a 40-hour week.

The Senate gave first round approval to a bill increasing the maximum levy to support Kansas City museums. The measure, sponsored by Sen. Mary Gant, D-Kansas City, would increase from two cents to nine cents the maximum per $100 assessed valuation rate which may be levied to support the museums in the city.

The senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments and Reorganization heard testimony on three resolutions relating to county charters and home rule.

The committee also heard testimony on a proposed resolution for a statewide salary review commission for review of salaries paid to elected and public officials.

Mondale speaks with Pope Paul VI

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI met with Vice President Walter F. Mondale today and told him President Carter's pledge to work for an end to the arms race will be "of immense service to the world."

"We are convinced that everything that wounds, weakens, and dishonors life will destroy peace and degrade humanity, and it is thus with optimism that we note the commitment of your president in favor of the reduction of weapons, particularly nuclear weapons.

"We are sure that this will promote common interests and be on immense service to the world."

The pope spoke in English.

Mondale said the meeting was "reassuring to us" and expressed the "strong necessity for freedom, justice, compassion and peace."

The papal audience concluded Mondale's overnight visit to the Italian capital, and afterward he left for London to meet with British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

The meeting with Mondale was the pope's first with a top-ranking American official in more than 19 months, since he received President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on June 3, 1975.

The vice president met Wednesday with Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti and President Giovanni Leone, and an informed source said 80 per cent of the conversation was devoted to Italy's grave economic situation.

A State Department official traveling with the vice president said the subject of future Communist participation in the Italian government and the effect that might have on Italy's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) came up only indirectly.

A few hours before Mondale and Andreotti met, Italy's three major labor federations reached an agreement with the major employer group that could reduce labor costs and increase productivity.

Dexter man charged with a felony

BLOOMFIELD— A Dexter businessman, Edward Dwain Kirby, has posted bond of $5,000 on felony confidence game charges.

Kirby, formerly associated with SeMo Enterprises here, was charged last week and posted a 10 per cent cash bond.

Law enforcement officials said the charges allege that Kirby fraudulently used lien waivers, and the initial sums allegedly involved in the scheme may total "several thousand dollars," sheriff's officers said.

RAGGEDY ANN

NEW YORK (AP) — "Raggedy Ann & Andy," the first feature-length animated musical comedy produced in the United States, will be released this Easter by Twentieth Century-Fox.

The film is based on the characters created by Indianapolis Star cartoonist John Gruelle. It has a full Broadway musical score and 12 songs written especially for the film.

Real estate people looking for vigorous sales in 1977

NEW YORK (AP) — Real estate people are looking for this year to be the most vigorous ever in sales of single-family dwellings, despite an anticipated rise in the median price of new homes to more than $50,000.

That expectation, from the National Association of Realtors, stands in sharp contrast to some other industrial forecasts that are hedged against the possibilities of rising interest rates and inflation.

The Realtors concede that inflation will be apparent in the housing market, but no more so than in 1976. They forecast an 8 per cent rise for existing homes and a 10 per cent increase for newly built units.

The cost of mortgages, however, is expected to go the other way, falling during the first half of the year to 8.5 per cent before stabilizing and then probably inching higher. Rates last year generally were around 9 per cent.

The biggest spur to sales is expected to come from an even stronger existing home market. Last year close to 3 million such homes changed hands, and the Realtors expect sales this year to total 3.4 million.

The interest of Americans in homes previously occupied soared during the past few years but was almost unnoticed by some economists and others who had their eyes glued to the figures on newly built homes.

A number of factors are behind the interest, including the higher cost of new homes, the greater spaciousness of some existing homes, the desire of some young couples to renovate units in mature neighborhoods.

In addition to higher sales for existing homes, the Realtors expect that about 1.3 million single-family homes will be started in 1977, making it the second-best year ever for this type of construction.

In all, said the Realtors, "American consumers will spend $220 billion to purchase nearly 4.7 million single-family homes, making this the best year ever for the single-family home market."

What astonishes some students of the housing market is that the surge comes in the face of higher prices — prices that some of them had felt would rule out statistics such as those now forecast.

The thrift industry, made up of savings banks and savings and loan associations, had record high deposits in 1976, and is expected to be in a strong position to lend throughout 1977.

Empoyers tax reports are due Mon., Jan. 31

ST. LOUIS – Employers must report Social Security and withheld income taxes for the last quarter by Jan. 31, the Internal Revenue Service has announced.

This deadline does not apply to those employers who make timely deposits in Federal Reserve or approved commercial banks of the full amount of tax due. They are allowed until Feb. 10 to file Form 941, Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return.

The IRS emphasized that employers who received the preaddressed Form 941 in the mail should use it to file their report. Those persons who did not receive the preaddressed forms may obtain forms from their local IRS office.

IRS Publication 15, "Circular E--Employer's Tax Guide," provides further information on these taxes and is available free from most local IRS offices.

Empoyers tax reports are due Mon., Jan. 31

ST. LOUIS – Employers must report Social Security and withheld income taxes for the last quarter by Jan. 31, the Internal Revenue Service has announced.

This deadline does not apply to those employers who make timely deposits in Federal Reserve or approved commercial banks of the full amount of tax due. They are allowed until Feb. 10 to file Form 941, Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return.

The IRS emphasized that employers who received the preaddressed Form 941 in the mail should use it to file their report. Those persons who did not receive the preaddressed forms may obtain forms from their local IRS office.

IRS Publication 15, "Circular E--Employer's Tax Guide," provides further information on these taxes and is available free from most local IRS offices.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 1977. There are 338 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1808, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington.

In 1964, France recognized Communist China.

In 1967, U.S. astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died in a flash fire in their space capsule at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

In 1969, more than 100 deaths were reported in California after nine days of torrential rain that caused flooding and mudslides.

Also in 1969, 14 men, including nine Jews, were executed in Iraq on charges of spying for Israel.

Ten years ago: The United States, the Soviet Union and 60 other nations signed a treaty to limit military activities in outer space.

Five years ago: At Vietnamese peace talks in Paris, the Communist representatives insisted that there could not be a settlement until the United States set a date for total military withdrawal and ousted the Saigon government.

One year ago: The House of Representatives gave final congressional approval to cutting off aid for two Western factions in the civil war in Angola.

Team to write Washington column

Martha Angle and Robert Walters, two distinguished Washington reporters, will write a new daily national affairs column which will appear in this newspaper beginning in February.

The column is a major element of the Newspaper Enterprise Assn. feature news service to which more than 750 newspapers throughout the United States and Canada subscribe.

Walters, who has been called by Washingtonian magazine one of the Capital's top investigative reporters, had been an associate editor of Parade Magazine, the weekly supplement distributed in 113 Sunday newspapers. Angle, a 13-year veteran of The Washington Star, had been the paper's Senate correspondent.

The Walters and Angle column may set several journalistic precedents. It may mark the first time a man and a woman, who are also husband and wife, are writing a Washington column under a joint byline.

"We at NEA are delighted with the prospects," said Robert Roy Metz, the company's president and editor. "We are satisfied that Walters and Angle are the two best people in Washington to take on this important assignment. The fact they are a married couple, while interesting, is quite incidental. We were impressed by their backgrounds and by their reputations in Washington.

"Readers are going to discover, as we have, that Bob Walters and Martha Angle are first-class reporters and analysts who have developed a formidable number of high-placed sources in and out of government. This new team knows what's happening in Washington and has the rare ability to report it clearly and in perspective."

"One of the column's great strengths," the authors believe, "is that we will not be bound to a rigid format or a fixed ideological bias. When such an approach is warranted, we will seek to offer a thoughtful perspective or fresh insight on current events. When circumstances demand, we can and will provide tough but responsible investigative reporting. When the events call for it we will analyze the behind-the-scenes political infighting and maneuvering which often plays a crucial role in the shaping of public policy."

Bob Walters and Martha Angle have devoted most of their professional lives to preparing themselves for this new venture. They begin the column after nearly 15 years apiece in covering official Washington for both newspapers and magazines. Each has, during their careers, covered virtually every department and agency in the executive branch, both houses of Congress and the federal courts.

During the past decade they have traveled extensively to report on national political conventions and meetings as well as campaigns for the presidency, vice presidency, the House and Senate, governorships and other major statewide offices.

Notwithstanding that considerable experience, both are relatively young (Walters is 38, Angle, 35), allowing them to bring to the column the fresh perspective of a new generation. Their under-40 peers include, for example, most of the principal staff assistants to President Carter as well as a steadily increasing number of congressmen.

Walters is a graduate of Lehigh University. His first newspaper job was as a reporter for the Southbridge (Mass.) Evening News. In 1962 he joined United Press International in its Harrisburg, Pa., bureau, where he covered state government.

In 1963, he was named UPI bureau manager in Cincinnati, where he established the first bureau and was in charge of news coverage in southwestern Ohio, northern Kentucky and southeastern Indiana.

He joined The Washington Star in 1964 as a suburban reporter and after a year was promoted to the national desk. In his nine years of national reporting for the Star, he covered the House and Senate and the White House during the Johnson administration.

Walters developed a speciality in investigative reporting and covered such major stories as Bobby Baker, the Sen. Thomas Dodd censure, the relationship between ITT and the Nixon administration, and Watergate.

In 1974, he became associate editor of Parade magazine. Walters writes a biweekly column on politics for the National Journal and has contributed to such publications as the Columbia Journalism Review, Washington Monthly, Washingtonian and The New Republic. He is a board member of the Fund for Constitutional Government, a member of the advisory board of the Fund for Investigative Journalism, and of the board of a Washington journalism review now in formation.

Martha Angle, a native Washingtonian, is a graduate of Oberlin College. Her first newspaper job was as a reporter for the Elyria (Ohio) Chronicle-Telegram. She joined the Washington Star in 1963 as a general assignment reporter.

Her career on The Star has included assignments to a series of beats involving local, state and federal politics and government.

She covered Prince Georges County, Maryland, the largest suburb of Washington, writing everything from police and court news to local politics and government.

Angle also covered the state of Maryland for the Star, including the legislature, governor's office, state government and the courts, as well as the Senate campaigns of 1968 and 1972.

Angle was her paper's principal reporter at the Senate Watergate hearings and helped report the impeachment proceedings and resignation of Richard Nixon, as well as the transition to the Ford presidency.

Since 1974 she has been the chief Senate reporter for the Star, covering major legislative developments and the institutional and political trends of the Senate.

Team to write Washington column

Martha Angle and Robert Walters, two distinguished Washington reporters, will write a new daily national affairs column which will appear in this newspaper beginning in February.

The column is a major element of the Newspaper Enterprise Assn. feature news service to which more than 750 newspapers throughout the United States and Canada subscribe.

Walters, who has been called by Washingtonian magazine one of the Capital's top investigative reporters, had been an associate editor of Parade Magazine, the weekly supplement distributed in 113 Sunday newspapers. Angle, a 13-year veteran of The Washington Star, had been the paper's Senate correspondent.

The Walters and Angle column may set several journalistic precedents. It may mark the first time a man and a woman, who are also husband and wife, are writing a Washington column under a joint byline.

"We at NEA are delighted with the prospects," said Robert Roy Metz, the company's president and editor. "We are satisfied that Walters and Angle are the two best people in Washington to take on this important assignment. The fact they are a married couple, while interesting, is quite incidental. We were impressed by their backgrounds and by their reputations in Washington.

"Readers are going to discover, as we have, that Bob Walters and Martha Angle are first-class reporters and analysts who have developed a formidable number of high-placed sources in and out of government. This new team knows what's happening in Washington and has the rare ability to report it clearly and in perspective."

"One of the column's great strengths," the authors believe, "is that we will not be bound to a rigid format or a fixed ideological bias. When such an approach is warranted, we will seek to offer a thoughtful perspective or fresh insight on current events. When circumstances demand, we can and will provide tough but responsible investigative reporting. When the events call for it we will analyze the behind-the-scenes political infighting and maneuvering which often plays a crucial role in the shaping of public policy."

Bob Walters and Martha Angle have devoted most of their professional lives to preparing themselves for this new venture. They begin the column after nearly 15 years apiece in covering official Washington for both newspapers and magazines. Each has, during their careers, covered virtually every department and agency in the executive branch, both houses of Congress and the federal courts.

During the past decade they have traveled extensively to report on national political conventions and meetings as well as campaigns for the presidency, vice presidency, the House and Senate, governorships and other major statewide offices.

Notwithstanding that considerable experience, both are relatively young (Walters is 38, Angle, 35), allowing them to bring to the column the fresh perspective of a new generation. Their under-40 peers include, for example, most of the principal staff assistants to President Carter as well as a steadily increasing number of congressmen.

Walters is a graduate of Lehigh University. His first newspaper job was as a reporter for the Southbridge (Mass.) Evening News. In 1962 he joined United Press International in its Harrisburg, Pa., bureau, where he covered state government.

In 1963, he was named UPI bureau manager in Cincinnati, where he established the first bureau and was in charge of news coverage in southwestern Ohio, northern Kentucky and southeastern Indiana.

He joined The Washington Star in 1964 as a suburban reporter and after a year was promoted to the national desk. In his nine years of national reporting for the Star, he covered the House and Senate and the White House during the Johnson administration.

Walters developed a speciality in investigative reporting and covered such major stories as Bobby Baker, the Sen. Thomas Dodd censure, the relationship between ITT and the Nixon administration, and Watergate.

In 1974, he became associate editor of Parade magazine. Walters writes a biweekly column on politics for the National Journal and has contributed to such publications as the Columbia Journalism Review, Washington Monthly, Washingtonian and The New Republic. He is a board member of the Fund for Constitutional Government, a member of the advisory board of the Fund for Investigative Journalism, and of the board of a Washington journalism review now in formation.

Martha Angle, a native Washingtonian, is a graduate of Oberlin College. Her first newspaper job was as a reporter for the Elyria (Ohio) Chronicle-Telegram. She joined the Washington Star in 1963 as a general assignment reporter.

Her career on The Star has included assignments to a series of beats involving local, state and federal politics and government.

She covered Prince Georges County, Maryland, the largest suburb of Washington, writing everything from police and court news to local politics and government.

Angle also covered the state of Maryland for the Star, including the legislature, governor's office, state government and the courts, as well as the Senate campaigns of 1968 and 1972.

Angle was her paper's principal reporter at the Senate Watergate hearings and helped report the impeachment proceedings and resignation of Richard Nixon, as well as the transition to the Ford presidency.

Since 1974 she has been the chief Senate reporter for the Star, covering major legislative developments and the institutional and political trends of the Senate.

WHERREAS, the said deed of trust was executed to secure the payment of a certain promissory note therein described and describes the following real estate situated in the County of Scott, State of Missouri, to wit:

A part of the South Half (S½) of the Southwest Quarter (SW¼) of the Northeast Quarter (NE¼) of Section Twenty (20), Township Twenty-eight (28) North, Range Thirteen (13) East, and described as follows: Beginning at a point in the centerline of the creek that is North along the ¼ Section line a distance of 910.4' from the Southwest corner of the NW¼ of the SE¼; thence from said point of beginning continue North along said ¼ Section line a distance of 1069.6' to the intersection of the 1-64th Section line and point of beginning of tract to be conveyed, said point marked by a ½" x 36" metal pipe; thence East along the said 1-64th Section line a distance of 164.9' to the West right-of-way line of Missouri State Highway No. 77, said point marked by a ½" x 36" metal pipe; thence S. 19 degrees E. along said West right-of-way line of Missouri State Higheay No. 77 a distance of 100' to a point, said point marked by a ½" x 36" metal pipe; thence S. 71 degrees W. a distance of 206' to the ¼ Section line aforesaid, said point marked by a ½" x 36" metal pipe; thence North along the ¼ Section line a distance of 161.7' to the point of beginning.

WHEREAS, the above described property was placed in trust to secure the payment of the said promissory note; and

WHEREAS, there has been default of said deed of trust in the following particulars: Hosie Lee Taylor and Bertha Mae Taylor, the borrowers, failed to pay installments of principal and interest when due, permitting the same to become delinquent, and failed to pay real estate taxes when due, and said note has been declared due and payable and has not been paid;

NOW, THEREFORE, under the power of sale contained in said deed of trust, the undersigned Trustee, at the request of the legal holder of said note and deed of trust will on the 22nd day of February 1977, between the hours of 10:00 o'clock a.m. and 2:00 o'clock p.m. sell the above described real estate at a public sale, without regard to race, creed, color, sex, age or national origin, to the highest bidder for cash at the East door of the Courthouse in the City of Benton Scott County, Missouri, for the purpose of discharging the debts secured by said deed of trust, advances made by the beneficiary for insurance, taxes, the interest on all such sums, and costs of executing this trust.

Chaffee schools superintendent gets contract okay for 77-78

CHAFFEE — A contract for 1977-78 school year was accepted by Supt. Howard Reed during an executive session of the Chaffee Board of Education Monday night. Reed will complete his first year with the school system in May.

A temperature of 65 degrees is being maintained in all classrooms, Reed said, and advised parents to send children to school warmly dressed.

Four members of the Chaffee Jaycees were present at the meeting to volunteer to finish the interior of the girls' locker room and the coaches' offices at the high school.

Filing for two seats on the board opened Tuesday and will be open until 4 p.m. March 4. Members whose terms expire are Ronnie Whitaker and Lyndon Duncan. Both terms are for three years, and filing is open to any person who is 30 years of age, a U.S. citizen, a resident of Missouri one year and a taxpayer in the Chaffee school district.

A policy committee, comprised of board members, principals of elementary and secondary schools here and members of the community will meet at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 17 in the superintendent's office. There will be a special board session at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7 to review insurance bids.

In other business, the board:

— Announced an insurance consultant with the Department of Education will appraise all school buildings for insurance purposes.

—Approved a summer athletic program for children should it be developed through the sponsorship of an organization here.

Fredericktown dog travels 1,000 miles home

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Tyke, a 12-year-old cocker spaniel from Fredericktown, Mo., logged more than 1,000 miles of travel within a week.

The saga began last week when Mr. and Mrs. James Zahner found the dog in near zero weather outside their Fredericktown home.

"We advertised, but nobody answered our ads," Zahner said. He is stationed in the Navy at Norfolk, Va., and decided to take the dog back to the base to give to some friends who like dogs.

Zahner stopped off near here to visit relatives. While here his wife called from Missouri to say she had located Tyke's owner.

It was Mrs. Les Seabauth, who was hospitalized there in critical condition.

Zahner took the dog to the local animal shelter explaining that he had to go on to Norfolk, but that the dog had to be returned to its home.

Employes of the shelter contacted the humane association in Fredericktown. After four days of medical treatment, Tyke was pronounced well enough to make the flight from Charleston to Missouri.

Late Tuesday, the dog was placed on board a flight to St. Louis. Ann Martin, a relative of the owner, drove 100 miles from Frederick[illegible] to meet the plane. She telephoned the local shelter to tell them the dog arrived safely.

Hat factory is broken into

DEXTER — The International Hat Co. factory on North Poplar Street was broken into Wednesday night and an undetermined amount of change was taken from a soft-drink machine and the office, police announced today.

Entry was gained through a window, police said.

Rural fire protection is discussed in Malden City Council session

MALDEN — The nucleus of a rural fire protection district was formed at Monday night's City Council meeting, after a lengthy discussion.

About eight rural residents attended the council meeting and, after aldermen moved on to other matters, retired to another room and formed a rural fire protection committee. Verlin Cross was named chairman, Dawsey Brown was named vice chairman, Wayne Baker, secretary, and Gale Hodges, treasurer.

Hodges said board members include Dale Borders, Hershel Loafman and the Rev. Cletus Gobble.

Hodges also said the committee has set a tentative meeting date of Feb. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the northeast room at the Malden Community Center. He added that "once organized, we'll set up laws and bylaws" with a goal of forming a governing body for a fire protection district.

Various fire-protection plans were discussed at the meeting and concluded when Mayor Sparrel Davis told the group to talk over the matter, formulate a plan and present it to the city.

Jim Darnell told aldermen early in the meeting that the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation has turned down the application to provide lighting for East Field. He suggested that the city remove lights from Layne Field and install them at East Field, a move he thinks "will adequately take care of the baseball program."

He said the cost will be about $4,000, which should provide for both the softball and baseball programs. The mayor asked the parks committee to check into the matter.

Police Judge Ralph Stropp appeared to ask the council for a raise in salary, saying it has been four years since his last pay increase and that inflation has made another raise necessary. Davis told Stropp the council has not yet considered raising salaries, but will do so before the April 5 election.

Stropp, also a member of the County Court, told aldermen he expects a Campbell firm to sign a contract shortly which will enable the county landfill to be reopened.

Bill Green, city engineer, presented plans for the new fire station on East Laclede Street and asked aldermen to approve an advertisement for bids, which are to be presented at the Feb. 22 meeting. Bids will be sought by advertising in the Malden, Sikeston, Kennett and Poplar Bluff newspapers.

Tudor Willis was reappointed by the mayor to a three-year term on the Malden Housing Authority Board.

Aldermen voted to set the filing deadline for municipal offices at 5 p.m. March 15.

The council authorized Aldermen Jim Corder and Bill Smithson to measure windows at the downtown fire station and give the city an estimate on replacing the windows.

Alderman Darrell White told his colleagues that the floor of the upper-story living quarters at the Air Base fire station has been made dangerous by termites; the mayor instructed the building committee to look at the building.

Police Chief D.W. McMillian told the council that Northtown Plaza merchants have said they are willing to work with the city on establishing fire lanes at that shopping center.

Tanker filled with gasoline explodes

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) — A series of explosions rumbled through an 800-foot tanker early today as it took on a load of gasoline and other fuels, leaving at least 17 persons injured and four missing, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

A witness said many crewmen leaped into the Houston Ship Channel or were hurled overboard by the blasts which sank a nearby tugboat and touched off a spectacular fire.

A Coast Guard spokesman said there were at least three explosions aboard the tanker Exxon San Francisco as it was being loaded at the giant Exxon refinery here.

"It was a rumbling type of explosion and the tanker did not simply blow up," a spokesman said.

A Coast Guard spokesman said three of the persons missing were crew members of the tugboat Nathan B, which sank near the tanker and was believed to have provided the spark that touched off the blasts. The fourth was a crewman from the CYS Brilliance, a Liberian tanker tied up at the same dock.

He said the tanker's crew of 30 to 40 men were all accounted for.

The Coast Guard said at least three of the injured required hospitalization.

About 45 persons were evacuated from nearby homes.

"They were loading heating oil through a loading arm when the arm broke, spraying heating oil over the dock," said Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Dennis Sande. "According to reports, the commercial tugboat Nathan B, which was docked on the other side of the pier from the San Francisco, started her engines and it was shortly after that that the explosions occurred."

The tug was tipped over and sank upside down, witnesses said.

Flames spread to the dock after the 2:04 a.m. explosions. Exxon personnel said the fire was under control shortly after daybreak.

The tanker can carry 496,000 barrels of fuel.

The Exxon refinery at Baytown, 25 miles southeast of downtown Houston, has a capacity for processing 400,000 barrels of crude oil a day and is being enlarged to handle 600,000.

The ship channel extends from Houston to the Gulf of Mexico.

Carter plan seeks to boost spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration said today it plans to send $50 to nearly every American, beginning in April, if Congress approves the President's $31 billion economic stimulus program.

Administration officials said 96 per cent of all Americans would receive the payments, which would be in the form of a tax rebate for taxpayers and special payments for Social Security recipients and the nontaxpaying poor.

About four million poor Americans who do not have children or do not earn any income or receive Social Security would be excluded from the program, officials said. They said the cost of reaching this group of Americans is too high and would create administrative problems.

Details of the administration's program were outlined to the House Budget Committee by Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Budget Director Bert Lance and Chairman Charles L. Schultze of the Council of Economic Advisers.

In addition to the $50 rebates and payments to most Americans, the administration also proposed permanent tax reductions for low-and middle-income families totaling $1.5 billion this year and $5.5 billion in 1978.

These reductions would cut taxes for a family of four with a $10,000 income by $133. For a family of four with a $15,000 income, the savings would be $88.

The lower taxes would be reflected in lower withholding taxes from workers' paychecks beginning in May, at the earliest, Blumenthal told the committee.

A taxpayer may claim a $50 rebate for every exemption claimed on his tax return, so he needs only to multiply $50 by the number of exemptions to determine the total rebate he will receive, if Congress approves the plan.

But the tax reductions, which would be accomplished by raising the standard tax deduction from $2,400 to $2,800, would benefit persons with incomes less than $17,500 for married couples, and less than $15,000 for single persons.
